Edward VIII, Sparkling Monarch, Abdicates to Wed Mrs. Simpson; Albert, Prosaic Duke of York and "Family Man," Will Be New King; Houses of Lords and Commons Act Quickly to Legalize Abdication

Solemn Words Feature Edward's Last Message

Pleads for Understanding of Peoples in Decision and Regarding Reasons; Private Feelings are Kept Out of Document.

UNEQUAL TO TASK

Tells Commons He is Unequal to Burden Under Present Circumstances; The Instrument.

London, Dec. 10 (AP)—King Edward's abdication was officially announced today in the House of Commons.

The announcement was made by Capt. Edward Algernon Fitzroy, speaker of the House of Commons. Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin prefaced the announcement by telling the members he had "a message from His Majesty the king signed by his own hand."

Renounces Throne

King Edward's words, in renouncing the British throne, the speaker read, were:

"I have determined to renounce the throne."

"After long and anxious consideration I have determined to renounce the throne to which I succeeded on the death of my father and I am now communicating this, my final and irrevocable decision."

"Realizing as I do the gravity of this step, I can only hope that I shall have the understanding of my peoples in the decision I have taken and the reasons which have led me to take it."

"I will not enter now into my private feeling but I would beg that it should be remembered that the burden which constantly rests upon the shoulders of a sovereign is so heavy that it can only be borne in circumstances different from those in which I now find myself."

"I consider that I am not overlooking the duty that rests on me to place in the forefront of public interest when I declare that I am conscious that I can no longer discharge this heavy task with efficiency or with satisfaction to myself."

Text of Document.

"I have accordingly this morning executed an instrument of abdication in the terms following:

"I, Edward VIII, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas, King and Emperor of India, do hereby declare my irrevocable determination to renounce the throne for myself and for my descendants and my desire that effect should be given to the instrument of abdication immediately."

"In token whereof I have hereunto set my hand this tenth day of December, 1936, in the presence of the witnesses whose signatures are subscribed."

"Signed, Edward R. I.

Brothers Witness Act

"My execution of this instrument has been witnessed by my three brothers, their royal highnesses the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Kent."

"I deeply appreciate the spirit which has actuated the appeals which have been made to me to take a different decision and I have before reaching my final determination most fully pondered over them."

"But my mind is made up. Moreover further delay cannot but be most injurious to the peoples whom I have tried to serve as Prince of Wales and as King and whose further happiness and prosperity are the constant wish of my heart."

"The Best Course"

"I take my leave of them in the confident hope that the course which I have thought it right to follow is that which is best for the stability of the throne and empire and happiness of my people."

"I am deeply sensible of the considerations which they have always extended to me both before and after my accession to the throne and which I know they will extend in full measure to my successor."

"I am most anxious that there should be no delay of any kind in giving effect to the instrument which I have executed and that all necessary steps should be taken immediately so secure that my lawful successor, my brother, his royal highness the Duke of York should ascend the throne."

The king, whose abdication has stirred the world, has enjoyed a varied career since his birth.

Edward VIII, King of Great Britain and Emperor of India, in his fourth year, swiftly made it clear that the new tempo of severest

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—As Britain's new monarch, the stammering Duke of York—called "Bertie" in royal family circles—still will play second fiddle in at least one respect to his glamorous elder brother. Inevitably, it is safe to predict, the world's headlines will follow Edward.

His life-long flare for the spectacular precludes any possibility of his fading into the semi-obscurity that engulfed the log-chopping ex-Kaiser Wilhelm in his hermitage at Doorn, the now rarely-mentioned ex-King Alfonso of Spain, and other sovereigns whose crowns have been swept away by the less romantic forces of war or revolution.

Ever since that June evening in 1894, when rot-poly, white-bonneted old Queen Victoria puffed laboriously up the stairs of Windsor Castle towards the cries of her new-born great grandson and dryly remarked, "At least he has a fine, powerful pair of lungs"—always, Edward has made news.

By contrast, the tall, sober-faced "Bertie"—true to his backstage character as a second son—never has really inspired a headline either by action, speech or personality.

Sparkling anecdotes about "Bertie" are rare. He just doesn't sparkle.

"Don't Talk"

Perhaps the best is the story of "Bertie" as a small boy lunching with King Edward VII and other members of the royal family. During the meal, "Bertie" stammeringly attempted to attract his grandfather's attention; but King Edward, busily talking, chided him for interrupting.

"Don't talk, lad, until we've finished luncheon."

Obediently, "Bertie" lapsed into silence. Luncheon ended, the king said: "Now then, what is it you wanted to say to me?"

"Bertie" gulped. "It doesn't matter now, grandpapa," he said glumly. "I was only going to tell you there was a c-c-caterpillar in your salad, but you've eaten it now."

In a way, that story epitomizes his whole career—a chronicle of unflagging obedience, even when bolder initiative as in this case, might have been a wiser, more courageous course.

Just as everything Edward touched glowed Midas-like with glamor, so in reverse ratio "Bertie" seemed doomed to the prosaic.

While Edward roved the world—to Canada, Australia, New Zealand,

Tension and Hysteria In House of Commons

Ex-Ruler Will Depart Forever from Empire's Shores Friday Night, Report Says; Destination is Not Indicated.

ASKED NO DELAY

Edward VIII Asked That House of Commons Move at Once on Abdication.

London, Dec. 10.—King Edward of England abdicated his ancient, mighty throne today.

He will marry Wallis Warfield Simpson as man, not monarch.

Albert Frederick Arthur George, the tall, 40-year-old Duke of York, will rule over the 495,000,000 subjects of the greatest empire on the earth.

He will reign as George VI.

Edward, said a report received by the Exchange Telegraph Agency, intends to leave the country, probably tomorrow night. There was no indication where he would meet Mrs. Simpson or when they will marry.

Tension and Hysteria

In "a message from his Majesty the King, signed by his own hand,"

Capt. Edward Algernon Fitzroy, speaker of the House of Commons, announced the abdication to a House of Commons in which tension and hysteria were breathing, living things.

Black-clad and sombre, Stanley Baldwin, the first minister, moved immediately consideration of the abdication by Parliament.

"That was the King's own wish, for his message said:

"I am most anxious that there should be no delay of any kind in giving effect to the instrument which I have executed, and that all necessary steps should be taken immediately to secure that my lawful successor, my brother, his royal highness the Duke of York, should ascend the throne."

Pleads for Understanding

In the deep, breathless hush, Baldwin pleaded for an understanding of his part in the most "re-pugnant task" ever imposed on a prime minister.

And told the story of the momentous weeks of struggle between king and prime minister.

"When I said 'goodbye' on Tuesday night," Baldwin told his tense listeners, while unsmiling crowds surged and jostled outside in Parliament Square, "we both knew, and felt, and said to each other that our friendship—so far from being impaired by the discussions of this last week—bound us more closely together than it ever had—and that it would last for life."

Parliament will remain in session, it was indicated, until all the necessary steps are taken for the abdication of one king and the making of another.

Council to Gather

The Privy Council will be called together, followed by a special meeting in Commons. The members of Parliament are expected to take their new oath of allegiance on Monday.

A bill to make the abdication law is ready now for introduction, here and in the dominions.

Happily, Edward's renunciation of the throne came without bitterness, and his pledge of hope for the empire's stability and the people's happiness gave the whole situation the aspect of a family problem.

Edward, with his younger brother, the Duke of Kent, spent the last fateful moments of his reign at trusted Fort Belvedere, the country retreat which has been the focal point of the empire's drama.

Just before parliament heard the word of abdication, the new king and the Duke of Gloucester had left Edward's side, to motor in the direction of Windsor.

Tragic Queen Mary

Tragic Queen Mary had gone to her second son's home in Hendonville, where she was alone.

And at the Villa Lou Vieil at Cannes, even before the world knew the truth, Wallis Simpson, through her spokesman-husband, Herman Rogers, said flatly that Edward would not join her there.

That left the plans of the woman who had been king and the woman he loved a secret unto themselves.

Baldwin outlined the whole crisis for Commons in a voice low and broken with emotion. He described his discussions with the king about the Simpson, and told the members how Edward from the outset had declared his determination to marry her.

"I felt doubly bound to speak," he said "it was my duty ... to the

Mayor Tells About Public Health Work

The attendance at the Wednesday night supper of the Business and Professional Girls' Club of the Y. W. C. A. this week was excellent, and all were more than repaid for coming by the address given by Mayor Helsenman.

Miss Skinner presided and a few Christmas carols were sung. Miss Bell leading the singing and Mrs. Eltinge playing the accompaniments. Announcements were postponed until after the mayor's address.

The special topic which the mayor considered, was that of the "Work of Public Health" in the community. He counted municipal government to be a service organization in all aspects: fire department, police department, street lighting, ash removal, highway maintenance, sewer department, water works to provide pure and abundant water, the feeding and clothing of the needy, hospitalization of the needy.

The mayor admitted that the city government could do a better job in all these departments if there was more money to pay for additional service, especially in connection with public health work. He went on to give an idea of what is included under the term "Public Health". There is the sanitary inspection of restaurants, bakeries, department stores where there is any sort of food for sale, places where food is manufactured and the food stuffs to be manufactured into food, with the enforcement of laws relating to such matters.

Milk inspection includes the sources of supply, checking up on the farms, dairies and depots from which milk is brought into the city, the testing of milk at the laboratory to ascertain the bacteria count.

Meat inspection.

Again there is meat inspection which provides for regular and constant inspection of the two slaughter houses taken to see that they allow no diseased parts of slaughtered animals to become food and that the work of slaughtering is carried on according to public health requirements.

The plumbing inspector must be called to inspect all plumbing changes and installations in order that no harm from defective plumbing may endanger the health and lives of people.

There are the keepers of the records of vital statistics of births and deaths a department, the work of which is of even wider importance than the limits of the city.

In short, there is a long list of the duties of city government to make a

Supervisors Hear Committee Reports

Printing, Town and County Accounts And County Auditor Committee Submit Reports On Affairs Of County.

Reports of several committees were received Wednesday evening at an adjourned session of the Board of Supervisors and a further adjournment was taken until Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Present indications are that the board will be able to conclude the remaining business at a session Monday evening and then take an adjournment until the last of December when the final business will be transacted and the tax rolls approved.

The annual session this year has been one of the most tranquil in many years with no debate from the floor, not even when the equalization table was presented for adoption.

At the Wednesday evening session the Committee on Printing Proceedings of the Board made its report in which it was stated that but two bids had been received for the job. C. M. Thomas Sons submitted a bid of $3.14 per page and the Freeman Publishing Company a bid of $3.15.

On motion of the committee it was moved that the contract be awarded to C. M. Thomas Sons, the lowest bidder.

Sportsmen Against Closing Waters

A petition is being circulated among the fishermen of the county relative to the closing of certain waters in the county to winter or so called ice fishing. The petition will be presented to the governor asking that the action of the Conservation Department in closing these bodies of water be reviewed and that a more equitable decision be made.

The principal point of protest is that there is discrimination against certain localities and against certain fishermen and the petitioners are asking that if certain bodies of water are closed to protect fish and to conserve the fishing, that these bodies be closed throughout the entire year for a period of two or three years so that fish may have an opportunity to breed.

A plan of alternating the various bodies of water is proposed. Those behind the movement feel that if protection is needed in any body of water it should be a protection which will exist throughout the entire year and cover a period of years and that during the period one body of water is closed other bodies should be open to the fishermen for winter fishing. Through a plan of alternating the open fishing they feel that better fishing can be had throughout the entire season.

Old Estate Mentioned As Home For 'Wally'

"It's all up to Wally," the caretaker said when asked what renovations were planned for the shore home on a 400-acre estate near Baltimore. It was understood letters had been written by Mrs. D. B. Merryman, the "Aunt Beebe" of Mrs. Wally Simpson, inquiring for a purchase. The estate is known as "Hayfield" and at one time was a Maryland sheep-pen. (Associated Press Photo)

MARLBOROUGH

Marlborough, Dec. 10.—The splendid sum of $89.88 was raised during the recent drive by the American Red Cross in Marlborough. Local workers were headed by Mrs. A. S. Ferguson. The collection taken at the Thanksgiving service held in the Presbyterian Church amounting to $22.88, was given to the Red Cross and helped to swell the total. Those assisting Mrs. Ferguson were Mrs. Edmund D. Short, Mrs. John Manion, Sr., Mrs. Frank Pembroke, the Misses Harriette Robinson and Ruth Norton and Mary Frances Ferguson.

The bids for fuel oil for the new Central School were opened at a special meeting held last week. There were seven or eight bids. Due to the fact that so many of the bids were practically alike it will take special consideration by the board to award the bid. The award will be made probably at a special meeting called for this week.

A good attendance was had at the card party held Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Joseph Smalley and sponsored by the local Ravine Rebekah Lodge. Chairmen were Mrs. Alice Dawes, refreshments; prizes, Miss Ruth Norton, cards, Mrs. Wesley Terwilliger, and tables, Mrs. George Coutant.

The local chapter of the Catholic Daughters of America has started its work in town in regards to "Today's Challenge to Catholic Women", a nationwide campaign for new members. The local unit is headed by Miss Muriel Hall as campaign chairman. The membership drive will end this month.

The Women's Association of the Presbyterian Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Will Plank on Thursday afternoon. This meeting was to have been in the home of Mrs. Olof Sundstrom, but has been changed. Mrs. A. S. Ferguson is assisting hostess.

About 30 members and friends of the local court of Catholic Daughters are planning to attend the birthday dinner dance of Court Nian of Highland, being held on Wednesday evening in Clinton Ford. The local court will go by a bus chartered for the occasion.

Plans are being made for the Christmas party to be held by Court Santa Maria, C. D. A., during Christmas week. The affair will be held in St. Mary's Hall, with Mrs. Miles Doyle, general chairman. This party is for members and their families only.

At the basketball game given recently for the Marlborough Parent-Teacher Association milk fund, $21.35 was made.

Mrs. Wesley Terwilliger, Mrs. George Coutant and Miss Ruth Norton recently attended the regional conference of Rebekahs in Walden.

Mrs. Joseph Zambito, who recently underwent a serious operation in St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, has returned to her home here.

Miss Mary Dugan has resigned her position at the E. J. Cumiskey store due to ill health.

Raymond Cooney of Wilmington, Del., is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cooney, for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Nell Twomey and Andrew Berkery are on a business trip to Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Boies and daughter of Elizabeth were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Swartz.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fowler and daughter, Muriel, and granddaughter, Elaine Anderson, have left for Lake Worth, Florida, where they will spend the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Moore and son have moved from the Young farm to part of the house of Cluett Schantz, formerly occupied by August Barclay and family.

Mrs. Henry Schlessinger and children and Mrs. Albert Schlessinger spent Saturday in Poughkeepsie.

June Schantz of Highland spent the week-end in town visiting at the home of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Fowler have moved to Renesselaer, where Mr. Fowler has a position with the New York Central Railroad.

Martin Tompkins, who has been ill, is improving nicely in his home on the North road.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Caneles of Poughkeepsie spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Caneles.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thomas of Woodhaven, L. I., were in town recently to attend the funeral of Mrs. E. W. Barnes.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. McCarthy recently visited in Fulton, N. Y.

Miss Della Cumiskey of Staten Island was a recent visitor at the home of her brother, E. J. Cumiskey.

study of and to control communicable diseases. In this particular feature the city health department does not work alone for it is under mandatory regulation of the state health department, all being given to people without charge to them. "We have long had our diphtheria clinics with the giving of necessary toxin, anti-toxin, etc., and now whooping cough is being added to the list. Our public health nurses visit homes where needed and seek to cooperate both with the physicians and families in the prevention of any spread of the communicable disease," said the speaker.

That dread disease, pneumonia has been added to this list and free of charge, sputum from the patient is at once the type of pneumonia that the correct serum may be administered, thus making for quicker recovery if not saving life. There are also social disease clinics. After the first of January the state will send two obstetricians to help in the welfare work, expanding that already so well done by the Junior League and its clinics.

Then becoming more specific, the mayor told of the work that it will now be possible to have done at the newly housed and equipped laboratory, one of the finest in the state, and which is of such inestimable value to all of us. This is not directly under the Board of Health for it has a Board of Management composed of five physicians, all being controlled by the city government. The state aid laboratory, established under the State Health Department, pays 50 per cent of its maintenance up to $7,500.

Former Handicaps

The mayor then went on to explain simply but very understandingly the handicap this community was under in former days when quick tests and their returns were as necessary as now to aid physicians and surgeons in making full diagnoses and acting accordingly. For instance, formerly if a case seemed to be that of malignant cancer, it was necessary to send a piece of tissue to the Buffalo laboratory and then await the decision, often some two weeks, when it might be entirely too late to save the patient. Now two highly qualified pathologists can attend to such matters right here in the local laboratory and give immediate and vital information to physicians and surgeons. The acuteness of appendicitis will also be more readily known.

"Another feature of great importance in the lives of all of us," said the mayor, "is the blood chemistries that can now be carried on here."

The speaker told very interestingly of the care of the little animals used to forecast human reactions in various diseases along this line of blood testing, stating that the little creatures are anesthetized just as carefully as a human being would be, are helped to a quick and sure recovery, for it is considered almost a disgrace to lose a test creature.

Again, after the first of January the laboratory will have a chemist properly qualified to carry on the chemical work of the laboratory. All of this activity not only safeguards the people of a community but is of great aid to physicians and surgeons.

Need Doll Dresses.

Announcements were then made Miss Beatrice Powley said that she had ready the dates of birthdays of patients at the Tuberculosis Hospital ready for those who would like them. It was announced that there were many more dolls to be dressed for the Mayor's Christmas Cheer party and also that at the meeting next week the club members would pack the candy boxes for the same party.

A further announcement was made of the Christmas music by the Y. W. C. A. Choristers at the Governor Clinton Hotel next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

After the regular meeting, Miss Tyler and Miss Skinner told the girls about the planning conference which they had attended at Schenectady.

Mrs. Reed extended to the club members an invitation received from A. C. Burnett, principal of the Newburgh Free Academy, for their Christmas Assembly, to be held on Friday morning, December 18, at 8:30 o'clock at the academy, in which a rarely beautiful Christmas music program will be presented by the musical organizations of the academy under the direction of Robert D. Williams, supervisor of music of the Newburgh schools.

will petition the governor is that by closing a body of water to winter fishing is in effect a discrimination of a certain class. Many fishermen who work during the summer away from home and who return winters to Ulster county are practically prohibited from doing any fishing through the closing of lakes and ponds in winter. This is particularly true of men employed on the canal and river during the summer season and among the protesting fishermen are numbered many such fishermen who to some extent depend on fishing for their livelihood in winter.

Their contention is that certain bodies of water should be closed to fishing throughout the season to provide a barrier of protection to fish but they contend that by opening the waters in summer to many out of county and out of state fishermen while they are away at work is a discrimination against them and not the best method of conservation.

Want Action Open.

Perhaps the one thing which brought the matter of ice fishing to a head was the recent closing of the Ashokan reservoir lower basin where many fishermen have enjoyed winter fishing in the past. This body of water was recently closed to ice fishing under the law which provides that waters inhabited by trout may be closed waters in winter. No one questions the fact that trout do exist in the lower basin in large quantities but there are many who believe that this body of water should remain open water.

Another closing which is being attacked by the fishermen is the closing of the lower Esopus Lake while the upper Esopus Lake remains open to ice fishing. This the men contend is discrimination against them. They feel that if fish in the Esopus lakes need protection that both lakes, which are adjoining and connected by a small stream, should be treated equally. The upper lake may be fished between December 6 and May 10, while the lower lake is closed during that time.

Some of the leaders in the movement to petition the governor for a hearing in the matter contend that if one of these lakes be closed that both should be closed and that the closing should be for the entire year and for such a period of years as would properly allow the fish to breed.

Through alternating the various ponds in the county as open and closed water it is contended better conservation could be had.

As to the lower basin of the Ashokan reservoir which is now closed to ice fishing some claim that any water which is not stocked and which is not fed direct by trout streams, may not be considered trout waters. Under this definition it is claimed that the lower basin should remain open to ice fishing as it is not legally trout water. Any closing of the basin could be done purely for conservation purposes and for such time as deemed desirable to restock the water.

"If you lift the ban on the first Saturday of April in the lower basin and permit trout fishing then there will be many bass caught, as bass are on the increase in the basin, and still the bass season does not open until June," said one advocate for keeping the reservoir lower basin open. "Undoubtedly some trout would be caught in the winter through the ice," he added, "but during the past three winters I doubt if there were more fish caught out of the basin than any one man could carry home."

"As we want a fair shake, we want to aid in conservation of fish but we feel that better conservation can be had by closing certain lakes and ponds for the entire year and for a period of two or three years, and allowing other ponds and lakes to be used for ice fishing. With the closing of the Ashokan lower basin and other ponds in the county to winter fishermen we are practically barred from fishing and out of town fishermen get the benefit next summer and spring," said one who favored the petition.

"We want to have the places closed up tight for the year to all fishing or left alone as they have been in the past," he concluded.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisons from Your Blood

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 quarts a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging headaches, rheumatic pains, hiccups, loss of appetite and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

SHOP EARLY. MAIL GIFTS EARLY.

With holiday spending expected to reach new records, local merchants have stocked their stores with attractive Christmas merchandise, put on additional help, advertised their wares and are now waiting hopefully for the customers to do their Christmas shopping early. Purchases long planned for will be purchased this season, serving as a great stimulus to business and bringing prosperity in a measure to our own community. Local merchants have gifts for every purpose and every pocketbook and shopping in local stores will be taken advantage of by wise shoppers throughout the county. Sometimes customers shop early in the season, while others wait until the last week. They always come but in waiting they do themselves a disservice. The early shopper gets the best choice of gifts to select from the Christmas stock and he has ample time to make his proper selections. Local merchants will replenish their stocks to meet customers' demands provided they receive ample notice. This can only be furnished by early shopping.

For out of town gifts the Post Office requests people to mail gifts early that the usual rush of the holiday season might be partly lessened, and to insure that gifts reach their destinations on time. The postman's burdens will also be lightened if there is no last minute rush of deliveries. By making purchases early and sending them early, the merchants and the postal employees will be able to be of better service. If the customer will do his part he will both help himself and his fellow man.

Kingston stores will remain open evenings beginning Monday, December 14, until Christmas in order to further accommodate Christmas shoppers who need to do their shopping evenings. Most of the stores will remain open until 9:30 o'clock.

SEEING AND HEARING

Eyes are more important than ears. They work more quickly, more surely, more broadly, and drag in more information. "Seeing is believing." Hearing is less dependable. Hence, no doubt, the great vogue for pictures. We depend on them more and more for extending our horizon. Moving pictures join newspapers, magazines and books, to give modern man such knowledge of the world as man never dreamed of before. Sound comes now with the films, but the pictures are the main thing. Newspapers themselves tend more and more to pictures, giving the reader in a flash things that would take hundreds of words to depict.

Radio is a seeming exception. In radio broadcasts the human ear has seemed to be enjoying a revival, so to speak, and an extension of range never conceivable before. We now actually hear things, getting direct ear-knowledge, from all the world. We even hear things formerly inaudible, through vast magnification by the electronic tube. From broadcasting we know many people and things entirely by ear. Soon we shall have television, too, bringing distant sights along with the sounds.

All this is fine for perception. But it is mostly mere enlargement of the power of our senses. We learn more. We know more. But do we think more? Probably not. We may even think less, because our information comes to us so easily and in such vast quantities, that we don't digest it.

LABOR SHORTAGE

A pressing and alarming thing about the present economic situation in this country is that, in some industrial centers, while there now appears to be an actual shortage of labor, the WPA and local relief funds remain almost as great as ever. It is a serious matter for local communities, hampered by the depression, to find work on their budgets, and for the federal government in its efforts to cut down its operating deficit. People wonder why such a contradictory situation should exist. No doubt there is chiseling. Many are on the WPA and the relief rolls who no longer belong there. One reason for that is the false economy which has reduced appropriations for continuous investigation of relief cases by competent social workers. There are WPA workers doubling up on jobs, or remaining on WPA jobs when they could get private employment. There are people still on relief when they could get jobs, or when members of their families have found private work. A thorough check-up, at whatever cost, would usually be found profitable.

This is not the whole story, however. Many skilled workers have lost their skills through idleness and hardship. There is much need of retraining skilled workers, or training them for skills required by new industrial processes. A great deal of forced idleness, too, comes from the preference of industry, and also of general business, for younger people.

We shall have to be wiser about this embargo on age. Carried to extremes, it becomes bitterly unjust to millions of competent men and women, discarded by a ruthless economic system through no fault of their own. It also puts a heavy and needless burden on their families, on taxpayers and on the whole body of working and producing people who, directly or indirectly, have to support them in idleness.

THAT NEW CONSTITUTION

Constitutional Communism is a new idea—new at least to the outer world, although it seems to have been foreshadowed by Lenin's writings 30 years ago. The governmental practice in Russia since the advent of Bolshevism has been more automatic than it was under the old Czar. Foreign nations have judged the Lenin-Stalin system accordingly, and expected nothing else.

Now, even with the Russian people discussing their new Constitution with as much interest and seriousness as our own forefathers did a century and a half ago, it is still hard for Americans to take the matter seriously. We cannot imagine those Russians being as free as we are. We can tell better when we see whether men and women are still sent to Arctic lumber camps for disagreeing with the government, and whether minority parties are tolerated. There can be no political liberty, no democracy, when minorities are silenced.

That Body of Yours

LEFT HANDEDNESS

One of my early school recollections is sitting near another boy who was naturally left handed. The teacher's instructions to him were that he must write with the right hand even if he did not write so well. It was not unusual to see him punished when he wrote with his left hand.

The rest of us gathered from the above and from other things that were said and done that there was something "wrong" with anyone that was left handed. We thought there was some defect—mental or physical—in his or her makeup.

Then it was noticed by some observers that a number of these left handed children had temper tantrums, speech defects, epileptic attacks, and enuresis (bed wetting) and were not as bright at school as other children.

Fortunately investigators in various countries made a study of these left handed children and the first point discovered was that they were not dull-witted, but, as a matter of fact, in proportion to their numbers, were perhaps a little brighter than the average boy and girl. Later, there have been investigations of these left handed children regarding the other attributes noted above—temper tantrums, bed wetting—and the results show that these conditions do not exist to any greater extent in left handed than in right handed children.

Dr. Joseph J. Michaels, Boston Psychopathic Hospital, and Sylvia E. Goodman, State Psychopathic Hospital, Ann Arbor, Mich., in Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry, state their experience with the examination of 148 children (boys and girls) of whom 82 were left handed. Their figures show that there was practically no difference between left and right handed children as far as the proportion of cases of enuresis, temper tantrums, speech disturbances, dreaming, and failures in school were concerned; and the left handed children showed but a very slight number more cases than those who were right handed in speech defects, thumb sucking and nail biting.

"Left handedness in the child is not found in families or inherited, as often as enuresis is found to run in families. And left handedness is not really important or significant from the standpoint of mental balance."

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLF

SYNOPSIS. Dark, handsome Philip Page returns to his boyhood home and buys the Warren-Courier. He backs the workmen of the Morris mill in their fight for better homes. Occasionally he acquiesces Sally Warren, the attractive, thoughtful society editor who loses her fiancé, Jerry Maynard, to her younger sister, Tip. Wanting Mary Morris, who is pursuing Philip, despite his newspaper battle with her property-owning father, gets Sally to stay at her house a month as companion. Philip asks Sally to see McDonald, a workman in Milltown, for him.

Chapter 28

The Errand For Philip

It was late afternoon when Sally left her desk clear and set out on her errand for Philip Page. Although the sun was low in the west, the August day was sultry and close. Rain had not fallen in some time and the blistering heat poured down on Warren County, drying up the grass, brightening the flowers. The sidewalks were hot to the touch of the feet, and the few pedestrians hurried from one bit of shade to another.

Along the shady avenues of the older section of Warren, where Sally lived, people found some comfort under the spreading branches of great trees, or behind the awnings on broad porches. There the women sat through the afternoon playing bridge, drinking tea and gossiping.

But in the poorer section of the town the people did not fare so well. Sally walked through streets where the houses were mean and crowded. The sun beat down mercilessly on tin roofs or cheap tar paper coverings. Women sat in rockers or on the steps, fanning themselves with paper fans, brushing the flies from their babies, watching their children play, half-naked, up and down the red gutties that served as roads.

Before Sally had gone half the distance she had to wipe her white linen dress as it was drenched with sweat. The wide yellow straw hat was burning with heat. She passed the Morris mill, where there was a smell of oil and the noise of machinery. Several women stood in a doorway of the mill, trying to catch a breath of air. To Sally their faces seemed pinched and pale, their bodies appeared to droop and they stared at her with dull eyes.

As she turned in at the McDonald house, a little boy ran to meet her. It was little Joe, wearing just overalls without shirt or shoes.

"Hello," he greeted her. "Member me?"

"Of course I do," said Sally. "How's your mother?"

"She's sick," said Joe. "The doctor comes to see her most every day."

"What's the matter?" Sally asked anxiously. She knew that the family could have nearly nothing to live on if May McDonald were kept from sewing.

"She's got to go to the hospital and be cut," said Joe. "Then she'll be well."

"But who's taking care of the children?"

"Lula Belle is. She's eleven and a half, now. She's real big."

Patience and Poverty

THEY went up the steps of the McDonald house, but this time the busy whirr of the sewing machine did not greet Sally. Instead, a little girl was making a rhythmic noise with voice and chair rockers to soothe the baby that fretted in her arms.

May McDonald lay in the brass bed beneath the best crocheted coverlet. Sally was shocked to see how drawn her mouth was and how her skin had yellowed in the few days of her illness.

"Sit down, Miss Warren," said May. "I'll have to excuse the way the house looks. Lula Belle can't do everything, seems like."

"I had no idea you were sick or I'd have come before," said Sally.

"I did try to send you word," said May. "But they said you'd gone off to stay in Mr. Morris's house. I seen in the paper you been having a big wedding at your house, too."

"My sister was married," said Sally. "Suddenly she was ashamed of the lavish spending for the wedding, ashamed of her own cool comfort at the Morris house, in the face of so much patience and such poverty."

"I bet the little girl was a pretty sight in her wedding dress," said May. "I made a wedding dress for a girl just before I was took sick. I guess I won't make no more soon."

"Yes, you will," said Sally. "It must be true. It had to be that May would get well again."

May shook her head. "I'm old and wore out," she said. "They want to cut me at the hospital, but I hate to go off and leave the kids with Lula Belle. I hate to leave Mac, too. He needs me."

"Was it about your going to the hospital that you called Mr. Page?" asked Sally.

"No, honey. He can't do nothing about that," said May. She looked around nervously, although there was no one in the room but herself and Sally. "My husband sent for him—Mac wants to see Mr. Page."

"Mr. Page had to go out of town for a day or two," said Sally. "He sent me instead."

"Mac won't talk to you, honey," said May. "It's real important. He'd be afraid to talk to you."

"Then he'll have to wait for Mr. Page," said Sally, disappointed, but understanding McDonald's reluctance to talk to a strange girl. "Has he got work, now?" she asked.

"No child. Most of the men's gone back to the factory at whatever price they'll pay. But the foreman wouldn't take Mac back—not any of the others that walked out and asked for more pay."

"It's About The Fire"

"MR. MORRIS is angry," said Sally slowly. "I heard him say the other night he couldn't pay his workmen any more."

"That's not the truth," said May.

Before Sally had walked half way to the McDonalds, her white linen was wilted.

Her gentle face was suddenly fierce with conviction. "It ain't so—not as long as the factory's running day and night with a big order. Not as long as he rides in a big car and his girl hires folks from Tennessee to play the music for her parties."

May sank back on her pillow and closed her eyes. Sally was frightened at the white look around her mouth. She held a glass to May's lips and May sipped a little of the tepid water. "I'm going now," said Sally. "I'll be back soon, and I'll send Mr. Page as soon as he gets back to town."

"That's mighty good of you," murmured May. Then, in a whisper, "Tell Mr. Page it's about the—the fire at the Palace theater Mac wants to see him about."

"I'll tell him," said Sally. She went outside. May's last words had disturbed her more than she admitted to herself. Surely McDonald, kind blunderer, honest McDonald, had had nothing to do with burning the Palace theater which belonged to Mr. Morris. And yet—Sally looked around her at the dreadful poverty of the McDonalds—a man without a job, a man with a grievance and a sick wife, mightn't he be provoked to any violence against the rich man whom he thought had wronged him?

Sally pressed a quarter into little Joe's hand as she left. "Buy some oranges for your mother," she said.

Joe due his big toe into the dusty road. "Mom don't allow me to take money from nobody," he said stubbornly.

"But this is some money I owe her," said Sally. "For taking care of my sister one time. You remember?"

Joe's face brightened. "Sure, I remember," he said. "I guess it's all right, then."

POLITICS at Random

THE political implications of President Roosevelt's South American trip are more international than national, yet it is conceivable that when the event is viewed historically, it will be seen as an important force in the alignment of public sentiment here at home.

By design or otherwise this venture into foreign fields fall at a most interesting moment. When he embarked for Buenos Aires, Mr. Roosevelt left behind a nation which was in the first stages of convalescence from the wounds of a particularly bitter campaign. He has been the chief issue of that campaign, and his absence from Washington, during the cooling off period naturally postponed declarations of domestic policy which might quickly have rekindled the fires of controversy and hatred.

It is worth noting also that the President chose this particular period to take up militantly the one cause in which there appears no appreciable division of sentiment among American voters—the cause of international peace. Even his bitterest pre-election foes must have felt a thrill of patriotic unity with this purpose.

It is difficult to conceive how any other possible course of action could have been better suited to apply curative medicines to the bruises inflicted by the campaign and election.

FROM this point forward, however, much depends on developments which cannot be foretold clearly.

In view of past experiences—and particularly the European peace venture of President Wilson after the World War—it is only to be expected that whatever peace accord emanates from Buenos Aires will be examined very carefully by the American public.

If the conference can produce a program so lucid and so exactly defined as to remove all fears of unwanted involvement by the United States in the affairs of her sister nations, then it is natural to suppose that Mr. Roosevelt's triumph will be complete, and the curative medicine he has applied will be effective.

But if controversy and apprehension should surround the final handiwork of the conference, then Mr. Roosevelt might well expect quite a different result. A new issue of that sort, injected into the current post-election situation, might serve to rub salt on the old wounds and light up all of the old flares again.

Fortunately there probably will not be great delay in determining the nature of the Buenos Aires accord. Secretary Hull sailed from home shores determined to bring back the conclusions of the conference, in completed form, before January 30, which is inauguration day. In these matters Mr. Hull seldom fails to accomplish his purpose.

EFFECT OF SELF A FASTER A SECOND factor yet to be assessed is the effect which Mr. Roosevelt's recent experiences, including his South American trip, may have upon the man himself. Over a considerable period, in two continents, the President has been receiving plaudits such as few men have known in modern times. Will this campaign, plus the election victory, plus the ringing echoes of the southern trip, make an appreciable change in his outlook toward the national problems of the nation over which he presides?

Out of an atmosphere of zealous idealism touched with a hint of unreality, Mr. Roosevelt comes home to such sober, practical tasks as budget-balancing, industrial recovery, and the political guidance of a congress which, year in and year out, glances only occasionally beyond the three-mile limit. What he does, what he says in his annual message to congress and in his inaugural address, unquestionably will be examined searchingly by those who desire to read the man's inner mind, after the experiences of his recent past. That is one of the imperious demands of the stage, in the unfolding panorama of national destiny.

AZTECS OF MEXICO RULED BY CALENDAR

Scientist Tells of Strange Rites Practiced.

New York—Among the many strange rites of the ancient Aztecs of Mexico, their observance of their calendar cycle of 52 years was one of the strangest. In Natural History, published by the American Museum of Natural History, Dr. George C. Vaillant, associate curator of Mexican anthropology, points out that every day and every night of the Aztec people was under the protection of one or another god or goddess, which had to be appeased.

"Special gods," writes Dr. Vaillant, "presided over the weeks and months. So completely were the people governed by the calendar that at the completion of their cycle of fifty-two years, a large unit of time corresponding to our century, they thought that the world might end if the gods were not sufficiently propitiated to renew life again."

"Before the new year, all hearths were extinguished, all household utensils broken and discarded, the people gave themselves up to fasting and lament. The priests repaired to a high hill just outside of Mexico City and made sacrifices. When the gods signified their approval, at dawn of the new cycle, a new fire was kindled in the heart of a sacrificed slave, and runners with torches lit from this blaze ran to light again the hearths of temples and houses in every part of the valley. Great rejoicing arose, and the people redecorated their homes and temples, made new household furnishings, and were ready to enjoy life secured them for another fifty-two years."

In this article on "The History of the Valley of Mexico," Dr. Vaillant tells of his exploration into the ancient cultures which leads to the origins of the famous Aztec culture and sheds new light on the evolution of Mexican art.

At 77, Man Has Resided in One House 44 Years

Jasper, Tex.—The life of George Glenn, seventy-seven-year-old farmer of the Temple community, twelve miles south of here, is crowded with things he never has done.

He and his seventy-five-year-old wife, Miranda, live quietly on their farm, contented with their job of rearing six children.

Glenn, like his wife, is a native of Newton county, where they lived in one home for forty-four of their fifty-six years of married life.

Glenn lives within twenty miles of the Neches river, but never has seen the stream. He has never visited a large city. A twenty-five-mile radius covers the extent of his travels. He has seen no towns except Jasper, Newton, Burkeville and Kirbyville.

He has never seen a film, never viewed a county fair or show of any kind. He has never owned an automobile—does not like them because they frighten his horse.

He has never been seriously ill. Glenn has ridden on only one train—from Kirbyville to Jasper to serve on a jury.

Mrs. Glenn, ill and with eyes failing, is the traveled member of the family. She has visited Houston and Beaumont.

Five of their children, two sons and three daughters, live in Jasper county, near the couple. The sixth, a son, lives in Houston.

Odor to Be Developed for the Rhododendron

Bainbridge Island, Wash.—Dr. Fred Murphy, "rhododendron king" of the state, wants to develop a fragrance for the rhododendron, Washington's state flower.

He received from the high Himalaya mountains a collection of 300,000 rhododendron seeds, some of scented varieties.

"It may take a dozen generations of cross-breeding," Dr. Murphy said, "but I believe the native rhododendron can develop a scent that will match its beauty."

TALKS TO PARENTS

'Economizing' On Beds

B BROOKE PETTES CHURCH

The young couple were furnishing their new home. They bought a davenport and two easy chairs, a dining room table and chairs, and a radio, lamps, a dressing table and a bureau. On the beds they saved money.

All their lives they saved money on beds. The children slept in beds that were not only cheap, with weak and sagging springs, but poorly made up. The sheets were too short, the blankets were grimy, the pillows and mattresses lumpy.

A little baby spends most of its time in bed, and even the adult is in bed for about one-third of at least a quarter of every 24 hours. But how many housewives consider this? How many mothers realize that their children's posture is largely affected by how they sleep? One grows one's organs function, even while one sleeps.

A bed for a tiny baby as well as for an adult should be solid, the springs even and not too yielding, the mattress level and not too soft, the pillow—if there is one—low but firm and smooth.

Bed clothing should fit the bed, and the sheets especially should adequately cover and protect the mattress, which necessarily cannot be changed every so often. Blankets should be warm and light and scrupulously clean. They are a splendid breeding place for germs and since they constantly touch the face, may easily carry infection to the sleeper.

All the bed clothes should be aired once a day, and then replaced on the bed smoothly and drawn taut.

If it is humanly possible, children should sleep alone. Almost any other detail of housekeeping can be neglected more safely than the beds in which the members of the family spend so large a part of their lives.

Sundown Stories

Willy Nilly's Excitement

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THEY arrived at the empty house and went indoors. "Oh dear, oh dear!" sighed Willy Nilly. "I had quite forgotten that we had left it in such disorder. But we had some feasts here, and the muddy tracks made by the cow and her twins have now become dusty floors. Yes, yes, there is even more to be done than I thought. Get to work, Puddle Muddlers! There is no time to waste."

"You were going to tell us why you were so excited about this house-cleaning," quipped Mrs. Quacko.

"Just get your family of ducks washing the floors and I'll soon tell you," answered Willy Nilly. "Rip, push around this mop in the upstairs rooms. Top Notch, hop up to the shelves with this duster and clean them all off. Christopher Columbus Crow, here is a duster for you—you fly around and get rid of all the cobwebs."

Never had they seen Willy Nilly so hurried over such a matter as house-cleaning. Never had he been so in command. They felt they must hurry and yet they had the feeling that they must do their work thoroughly.

"You're going to tell us why you're so excited about this cleaning? You have something special in mind?" barked Rip, as he ran downstairs to have Willy Nilly wring out his mop in fresh water.

"Yes, yes, of course, I'm excited and I'll tell you why in a very short time. I have something special in mind; oh, yes, but we must finish the work first of all," the little man briskly answered.

A Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—The social security board is suffering one of its very worst pains trying to solve the question of exempting private pension plans from the federal system.

Senator Clark of Missouri led a fight for such exemption when the social security act was framed in 1935. But somebody got to him with a basketful of explanations of how difficult it was to make equitable exemptions and he agreed to work a while with experts to perfect an exemption plan.

That was in 1935. He worked with the experts all through the 1936 session and each time reporters asked him what he planned to do he simply commented that progress was being made but the task was complex. It was so complex that Clark got nothing before the last session. Even now the social security board and its experts haven't much on hand to help him when the new congress begins asking questions.

Pro And Con

THE purpose of exemptions was to permit sound private pension systems to exist without the added burden of the federal tax on payrolls which begins January 1 at one per cent on employer and employee alike and ultimately swells to three

CHECKING UP ON OWL'S HEAD TEMPERATURE

Owl's Head, N. Y., Dec. 8.—"I sent to New York for this minimum and maximum thermometer after we had so much dispute over temperatures with the old thermometer," said Ezra Carpenter, right, county auditor and unofficial observer in this traditional "icebox." But Prof. Elbert F. Corwin, left, finds after a test that Carpenter's instrument is prone to err slightly. (The bottom of Carpenter's old thermometer may be seen just above that now in use.) FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flank Attack
Camden, N. J.—Earl Foy, a huckster, was returning to his wagon when he saw a man casually lift a bag of potatoes from the cart and place it in an automobile.

Foy yelled. The man jumped into the car and sped away. Foy chased afoot for several blocks, then gave up.

He walked breathlessly back and in dismay found six more bags of potatoes missing.

New Wrinkle
Columbia, S. C.—Police reported they arrested a man with 11 mute and uncomplaining hens he had stolen from a suburban coop.

The chickens were silent because their beaks were clamped with clothes pins.

Embarrassing Moment
Indianapolis, Ind.—It was an embarrassing day for Federal Bureau of Investigation agents here. They had to call on the police for help, reporting someone had sneaked into their offices and stolen two typewriters.

Plumbing Problem
Redlands, Calif.—The high school basketball team went on strike. Players said they caught cold walking 200 yards from the gymnasium to their shower room.

To end the strike players demanded permission to use the girls' showers in the gym building. The school board deliberated, vetoed co-ed shower baths.

So 300 students, sympathizing with the team, walked out of classes today, paraded downtown.

Social Lion
Denver—Commodore, king of the city zoo's sea lion herd is "that way" over a blonde.

Recently Commodore's mate died. He became moody, shunned crowds, refused to frolic and lost weight.

Then the zoo imported a female sea lion from California. The keeper said she was a "blonde, if a sea lion can be blonde."

Commodore became a new sea lion. He perked up and sped through the water. Zoo attendants dubbed the newcomer "Wally."

Where Milk Comes From
Civilized man obtains most of his milk from cows, but in some parts of the world other domestic animals are used. The Laplander gets his milk from reindeer, the Tibetan of the high Himalayas from yaks, the roving Tartar from mares, and the Bedouin of the desert from camels. In the temperate regions many pastoral tribes subsist on the milk of sheep and goats, while those in hot countries milk the buffalo. The milk of all these animals, states a writer in the Washington Post, intended by nature as nourishment for their young, contains practically the same ingredients, but in varying proportions. Ordinary cow's milk is 87 per cent water, 4 per cent fat, 3 per cent lactose and 3 per cent casein. It is also rich in vitamins, iron, phosphorus and calcium.

Father and Son Are Badly Hurt When Tractor Turns Over

Joseph Dorio and his son, Dominick, who have a farm on the Perkinsville road, near Milton, were seriously injured Wednesday morning while engaged hauling logs with a tractor on the farm of Allen Stone.

Both were taken to the Poughkeepsie Hospital following the accident. Joseph Dorio suffering from chest injuries, with fears that a lung may have been punctured, while his son had a broken leg and internal injuries.

Reports are that the Dorios were working the tractor along a sloping hillside, which years ago had been worked as a sandbank, but had grown up to timber and were hauling out a log when the tractor skidded and turned over, pinning Dominick, who had been running the machine, underneath and injuring his father, who was further down the bank.

Farm House Destroyed
Gardiner, Dec. 10—The local fire company was called out at 10:30 o'clock on Tuesday night to the farm of Frank Schoonmaker near the New

Hurley church. The large farm house was afire and had gained such headway when the fire companies arrived and although it was fought with chemicals by the Walden, Wal-kill, Plattkill and Gardiner firemen. It was totally destroyed. Some of the contents were removed. Through the efforts of the firemen no other buildings ignited.

Expanding purchases of steel-made goods by the ultimate consumer have been an important factor in raising employment in the steel industry to the present record level.

FOUR IN 10 UNFIT FOR ARMY SERVICE

Only Slight Gain in Health

New York.—Amid rumbling of international discord in other countries, a survey by American health authorities reveals that more than 40 per cent of the available men in the country would be found physically unfit to bear arms if this country were to face a national emergency.

For every 1,000 men who tried to join the U. S. army in the first eight months of 1936 through the enlistment office here, 408 failed to pass the physical examination, according to the figures being studied by Charles Atlas, physical culture authority, and Dr. Ralph Greene, medical director for a national air line and an authority on the physical requirements for flying.

Improvement Slight.
By comparing this year's figures with Surgeon General M. W. Ireland's report on the men drafted for army service in the World war, Atlas emphasizes the slight improvement which public health, athletics, and haphazard physical training have effected in this country during the past two decades.

A more determined campaign to develop the peacetime character of American manhood, he said, would have shown a more marked improvement over the 1917-18 draft figures. In that mass analysis an average of 532 men out of every 1,000 were found physically fit, 468 thus failing to pass the requirements.

A study of the reasons for rejection of army applicants made by Atlas shows that nearly one-third of the defects are those which could be largely minimized by proper care and training.

"The army report shows that defective vision is the chief cause for rejection," said Atlas. "In a large number of cases such deficiencies can be corrected by eye specialists prescribing simple eye exercises and proper glasses."

Many Overweight.
"More startling than this is the fact that the second largest cause for rejection is found in the height and weight of the applicants. That men allow themselves and their growing children to become overweight to the point of ultimately losing their efficiency, in the opinion of the army examiners, or underweight with a loss of energy and vitality, is amazing when it is considered that proper diet and exercise will eliminate these faults in almost every case."

"Public health and physical training should be vigorously pushed throughout the country to bring about a really marked increase in the average number of American men who are physically fit."

Proof that the rejections by the army constitute a fair yardstick throughout the country is seen in a statement issued by Dr. Greene. Tabulations made on examination of men who applied for flight training reveal that 47 per cent failed to measure up to the required standards for physical fitness.

Albino Frog Has Yellow

Streak; Puzzles Experts
St. Louis.—Lilith, rare Albino bullfrog of the St. Louis zoo, is gradually turning yellow and the experts are puzzled.

When she arrived here a year ago Lilith was pure white, and the zoo displayed her proudly.

But a few months ago she began to develop dark, splotchy freckles, and the yellow coloring is now streaking down and around the freckles.

This gives Lilith an appearance of mottled white, brown and yellow. The zoo is ashamed of her, and so is she.

Real Albino frogs occur about one in a million. Several eastern zoos have yellow ones and dark frogs can be found on almost any pond. Lilith, although no longer milky white, can still claim the distinction of being the only known frog sporting a blend of three colors.

Zoo officials can't explain Lilith's yellow streaks. She seems healthy, they say.

Structure Built in 1816

to Resume Its Old Form

Green Bay, Wis.—The "T" wing of Fort Howard hospital, built in 1816, is being restored as nearly as possible to a semblance of its original state for a storehouse of antiques connected with personnel prominent in the 300-year history of the white man's occupation of this region.

Fort Howard once was the center of military, social and civic affairs for a wide area here.

Light Glows for Hours

After Current Is Off

Chicago.—Aladdin's magic with a lamp is being approached by modern industrial engineers, who have invented a light which continues to shine after it has been extinguished. Introduced during a house furnishings exposition in the Merchandise Mart, the light has a chemically treated shade which continues to glow for several hours after the electric bulb is turned off.

File Claim Against State for $28,000

Albany, Dec. 10 (Special).—Claims against the state totalling $28,000, have been filed with the Court of Claims here by Charles R. Krom of Stone Ridge and his daughter, Alvetta, for injuries received by the young girl in an automobile accident on the New Palis-Ireland Corners Highway, last July 4.

According to the claim papers, Miss Krom on the day of the accident was riding in a Ford coupe operated by Roy Upright, of the town of Gardiner. "When the automobile came upon a certain defect in said highway and when the said automobile struck such defect, it was caused to swerve off the highway into and upon an embankment, wrecking the automobile and causing severe personal injuries."

The defect in the road, the claimants assert, was a hole in the concrete pavement of the highway, and the state was negligent in not only maintaining the road in an unsafe condition, but failing to post warning signs telling of the depression in the road.

As a result of the accident, Miss Krom, who is still receiving treatment at the Kingston Hospital, suffered fractures of the right leg, concussion of the brain, abrasions of the body and injury to both eyes. She asks $25,000 while her father asks $3,000 from the state. Counsel for the father and daughter is the law firm of Cashin & Ewig, of Kingston. No argument has yet been had on either claim.

Cafaros Taken To New Jersey

Wednesday afternoon detectives from Linden, N. J., came to Kingston and took Joseph Cafaro and his son, Pasquale Cafaro, of Ulster Park back to New Jersey to answer to a warrant charging grand larceny.

The charge against the two Ulster county men was that they had taken $7,900 from Andre Lupo, uncle of Joseph Cafaro, and brought the money to their Ulster Park home, where it was discovered by Sheriff Abram Molyneux early Wednesday.

morning secreted in two tin cans under the seat of an old Model "T" Ford truck which was parked under an open shed on the Cafaro farm near the Ulster Park railroad station.

This huge sum of cash was in bills of $500, $100 and $50 denominations and represented the life savings of the 39 year old New Jersey resident.

The two local men told the sheriff they had taken the money for safe keeping when the aged man refused to put it in a bank. It is claimed the money was kept in a bag which was hung on a nail by the unlocked window of the aged man's home. When he left the house to go to the store it is said he took the bag with him.

Twelfth Day is a Christian custom ancient past memory, its object to do honor to the three Wise Men or, as often called, the Three Kings. Old England celebrated it with a large cake, baked with a bean in the middle, whoever drawing the bean being King for a Day with all respect and privilege. Old London ranked it second only to Christmas in festivals. Rome and Paris celebrate it still, with the "Befana" in Rome—a large figure who parades through the streets dispensing sweets and gifts—and "Le Roi de la Fève" in France—the Bean King!

Marriage starts with billing and mooring... and the billing lasts.

Employer—No, we have all the work we need.
Applicant—Seems like you could take one more, the little bit of work I'd do.

Envy no man unless you are willing to change places with him.

She—I suppose you'd like to be free to marry again?
He—No. Just free.

The nice thing about this time of the year is causing the ice man good-bye.

Diner—Do you serve crabs here?
Waitress—We serve anyone, sit right down.

When the world doesn't appear to be running right, rest assured that you're not.

Fools go out while angels go to bed.

The first few weeks of school have already added to the teacher-and-pupil cracks. The latest to come to our attention:

Teacher—Suppose Billy had fifty cents.

Pupil—Yes, teacher.

Teacher—And you asked him for twenty-five cents.

Pupil—Yes, m.

Teacher—How much would Billy have?

Pupil (pessimistically)—Fifty cents, teacher.

The following interesting classified advertisement appeared in the Weektown, N. J., newspaper on November 28, 1935:

"For Sale—Pipeless furnace, perfect condition. Anyone not particular about having a warm house and willing to half freeze in cold weather it will be a perfect buy.—James O. Sprague, Beach Haven, N. J."

Relative—Now that you are through college, what are you going to do?

Youth—I shall study medicine and become a great surgeon.

Relative—The medical profession is pretty well crowded already, isn't it?

Youth—Can't help that. I shall study medicine, and those who are already in the profession will have to take their chances, that's all.

One little piece of hard luck makes the average man forget all the fortunate things that ever happened to him.

Bank Teller—Sorry, but you haven't enough money in your account to cash this check.

Fair Customer—That's strange. There was enough money to cash the last one I had, and this isn't nearly as large.

Many a man has lost his reputation for veracity by going on a fishing trip.

Voice Over Phone—I can't sleep, Doctor. Can you do anything for me?

Doctor—Hold the phone and I'll sing you a lullaby!

Cutting off advertising may reduce expense, but so does cutting your wind-pipe reduce the cost of living.

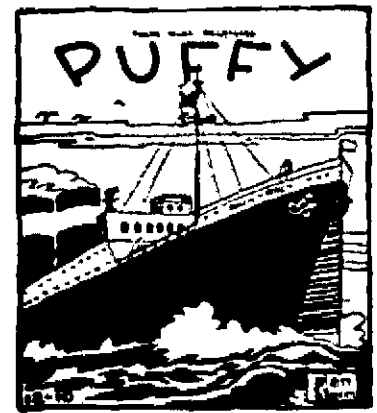

Sister—Was Dorothy in a bright red dress at the dance last night?

Brother—Some of her, sis, some of her.

Helen—Did Highball succeed in obtaining a divorce?

Charles—Yes, and he has already been revamped.

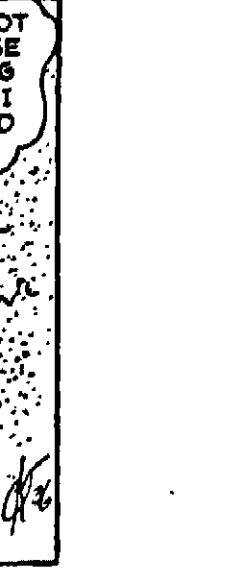

Nothing impairs a gas stove's efficiency so much as clogged burners. Remove them from the stove and scrub them thoroughly with hot soapy water, using a tooth pick, if necessary, to dislodge stubborn particles. When the burners are spick and span, give them a scalding rinse and dry them by lighting the gas when they have been put back in place.

Highland News

Highland Highlights

Highland, Dec. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Cotant were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gerhardt in Kingston.

About 30 persons were entertained at the Methodist parsonage Monday evening which included the members of the official board and their wives. The business meeting was presided over by the pastor and host, the Rev. S. A. MacCormac.

A need of toys to be distributed by the Lions Club was discussed at the meeting on Monday evening at the Elms. The club has featured this at Christmas time for the past two years with the boys at high school making any necessary repairs to many contributed from homes. The committee of Walter R. Seaman, Ledyard Ball, Milo F. Winchester have a need for more in order to distribute among the needy children.

Mr. Seaman, on the P. T. A. committee for a suitable bill for children to coast upon, brought up that subject and it was talked over. It is possible that the west side of the hill near the bridge circle may be put in shape for use. The club for boys was another subject discussed. Jesse Alexander, William H. Maynard and John F. Wadlin comprise the committee on ways to entertain the youth who are on the streets. It has been arranged that Mr. Alexander meet the boys at the school on Friday and extend the invitation to come to the Highland Theatre at 10 o'clock Saturday morning where a picture will be shown and the boys encouraged to talk over their interests and organize and elect their officers and give the leaders the opportunity of deciding along the best lines of work among them. LeGrand Haviland, Jr., presided at the meeting which was attended by 15 members.

The H. K. S. Card Club was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Gerhardt, Lincoln street, Kingston, Saturday evening. R. Chandler DuBois, president, conducted the business meeting, and minutes were read by the secretary. Meetemall pinocle was enjoyed and honors won by Miss Lucile Cooke, Saugerties; Harry B. Cotant, Highland; Mrs. Elizabeth Walsh, Kingston, and Mr. DuBois, Saugerties. The birthday of Mrs. Lawrence Spangenberg was also observed. Decorations were in pink and blue and favors were nut baskets. Salad, rolls, pickles, jelly, cake and coffee were served and a birthday cake was featured. The guest of honor received many gifts. The next meeting which will be in the form of a Christmas party, with Santa Claus and an exchange of gifts, will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Spangenberg, East Chester street, Kingston, Saturday evening, December 19. Plans for a party on New Year's eve were also discussed. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. DuBois, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Schoonmaker, Saugerties; Mr. and Mrs. Cotant, Highland; Mr. and Mrs. Spangenberg, Mrs. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt, Kingston.

Highland P. T. A. is sponsoring a card party Thursday evening at the home of Philip Wilkison. The proceeds of the party will be used for milk, soup or hot cocoa for the primary children in the school during the cold weather. Mrs. Irving Rathgeb and her committee are having the sale of tickets in charge.

Christmas work and plans formed the subject of the Evening Reading Circle meeting at the home of Mrs. Gladys Mears Monday evening, starting with the devotion led by Mrs. Clarence Rathgeb who had the Christmas story from the Scriptures, to the needlework done by those present. The making of animals and dolls and their completion was the work of the evening. Some twenty toys were thus made for a package to be sent to Miss Anna Belle Stewart at her community in Tennessee. Mrs. A. W. Lent, the leader read stories connected with the year's subject of Africa. The members decided to have a meeting on December 21, and in the meantime assist the Sunday school in their Christmas preparations. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Miss Marie Van Wormer and Mrs. Milo Winchester. Attending the meeting were Mrs. Gladys Mears, Mrs. Oliver Thibodeau, Mrs. Clarence Rathgeb, Mrs. Edgar Boyce, Mrs. Heston Woolsey, Mrs. Matthew Busch, Mrs. Elmer Randall, Mrs. D. S. Haynes, Mrs. Richard Burton, Mrs. W. D. Corwin, Miss Van Wormer, Mrs. Lent, Mrs. Arthur Clarke and Mrs. Frank Woolsey drove to Westhampton Saturday and returned Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Ellen Tompkins is ill at her home with a badly sprained ankle received early Monday morning. Karl Weston has returned from the Benedictine Hospital, Kingston, where he was receiving treatment for blood poisoning.

The Methodist meeting of the Methodist Church will be held Wednesday.

Slaying Investigated

Parchment Resulted From Boycott 1700 Years Ago

Discovery and development of parchment resulted from a boycott declared more than 1,700 years ago by a Pharaoh against Pergamum in Asia Minor.

The chief thing Pergamum was not able to obtain because of that boycott was papyrus, states the Pleasures of Publishing. That seemed a great loss at the time and it was as much of a loss to them as being deprived entirely of paper would be to us. But as things turned out, it was a great blessing to humanity, for necessity being the mother of invention, the ingenious souls of Pergamum turned to and developed parchment.

The important thing was this: The papyrus which they had previously been using was probably the most fragile and impermanent material man has ever used as a writing material, while the parchment which they introduced proved to be the best, the most permanent, the most indestructible, and all in all the most satisfactory writing surface ever discovered.

Parchment is usually made of sheepskin or lambskin. And vellum, which most people think of as being synonymous with parchment, differs in that it is customarily of calfskin. One of the oldest Biblical texts we have is done on antelope skin; had it been done on papyrus, it would probably have come to us in fragments, if at all.

ZENA.

Zena, Dec. 10.—A surprise party was tendered Mrs. Clifford Carnright by 25 of her Zena friends on the occasion of her birthday and wedding anniversary Monday. A delightful evening of games topped by a delicious midnight luncheon was enjoyed by those present.

Daniel Lynch is serving on the grand jury.

Montena Dewitt made a trip to Albany and Saratoga Monday.

Miss Nellie Carnright and Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Carnright of Newburgh visited in Zena Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Long entertained Mr. and Mrs. George Long and daughters, Virginia and Shirley, of Kingston Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lynch entertained Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gregory of Woodstock at a pork supper at their "Lynwood" home Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Woods and the Misses Millicent and Tessanne Sewell left Zena for Detroit, Mich., Friday, where they will now make their home.

Miss Anne Reinhold, and the Messrs. Frank Tichenor and Walter Richards of Staten Island, spent Sunday on the Chestnut Hill farm.

Clemence Randolph is spending some time in New York city.

Harry Lunden of Brooklyn was a visitor at the Klementis home during the week.

Miss Katherine Mellert has returned home after a prolonged visit in Highland.

Mr. and Mrs. Aurel Holmzer called on relatives in Catskill Friday.

At the meeting of the Zena Country Club on Friday, resolutions conveying the sympathy of the club members to Mrs. Mary Krause on the recent death of her husband, were adopted.

No More Piles

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel. This is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give lasting relief, why cutting does not remove the cause. Your itching, bleeding, protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause. External treatments can't do this—internal medicine should be used. HEM-1011, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the affected parts. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Hem-1011 Drug Stores invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-1011 with guarantee of money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives—Adm.

On The Radio Day By Day

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

Time is Eastern Standard.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—Opening night at Metropolitan Opera House is going on the air. It will not be the opera itself, but the intermission. That is, an NBC microphone will be placed in the foyer and at other spots where the audience gathers between acts so that an inquisitive announcer can interview them much the same as is done at Hollywood opening night. The date is December 21.

WJZ-NBC expects to have a full complement of football on its New Year's waves. Previous to the Rose Bowl game between Washington and Pittsburgh, starting late in the afternoon, there will also be descriptive matter about the Sugar Bowl contest at New Orleans, with the players L. S. U. and Santa Clara.

TUNING IN TONIGHT (THURSDAY):

Inter-American Conference—WJZ-NBC 11:15. Edward Tomlinson interview of Dr. Manuel DeBayle and Dr. Hammond Armas.
Talks—WJZ-NBC 9:30. America's Town Meeting, "Problem of Social Security," Frank Bane and Morris A. Linton. WJZ-NBC 10:45. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson on "Irrepressible Force an Immovable Object."
WEAF-NBC—7:15. Voice of Experience; 8: Rudy Vallee; 9: Showboat, 10: Bing Crosby; 12:08. Frank LaMar Orchestra.
WABC-CBS—7:15. Ted Husing; 8: Kate Smith; 9: Major Bowes; 10: Then and Now Finale, 10:30. March of Time; 12: Vincent Lopez Orchestra.

WHAT TO EXPECT FRIDAY:

Inter-American Conference—WEAF-NBC 5:20 p. m., Edward Tomlinson; WABC-CBS 6:35. H. V. Kallenborn.
WEAF-NBC—2. Music Appreciation (also WJZ-NBC); 4. Tea Time Variety; 6. Moorish Tales.
WABC-CBS—2:15. School of the Air, 3. Kreiner String Quartet; 4:30. U. S. Army Band.

Gun Used as Yardstick
In the old trapping days of the Hudson Bay company in Canada, at a time when beaver skins were of great value in Europe, a trade gun could buy from the Indians as many beaver skins as could be piled up on each side of the gun.

New Way to Hold False Teeth in Place
Do false teeth annoy you by dropping or slipping? Just sprinkle a little "Fay's" on your plates. This new fine powder holds teeth firm and comfortable. No more wobbly, puffy taste or swelling. Evident results. Get "Fay's" from your druggist. Three sizes.—Adv.

Kenny Held For Grand Jury
Thomas Kenny, 41, who was arrested December 4 at Long Island City on a charge of issuing a bad check, was held for the grand jury after arraignment before Justice Walter R. Seaman at Highland today. It is charged that Kenny gave the check in payment for fruit purchased at the Highland orchards, several hundred dollars being involved in the transaction.

Junior Patrol Dinner Tonight

This evening the dinner given by the Kingston Police and the board of education officials to the junior patrol, comprising boys from the various schools of the city, will be held in the Y. M. C. A., starting at 8 o'clock.

At the dinner, 121 boys will be the guests of the patrolmen and the educators, who, besides showing appreciation for the efficient work being done want to thank the youngsters and urge them on in their steps toward doing beneficial things for their comrades and incidentally for Kingston city.

John J. Finerty, Jr., principal of No. 7 Public School, will open the meeting, he having taken an active part in planning the affair, and present Officer Peter Kereeman, president of the Kingston Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

As toastmaster Patrolman Kereeman will introduce Mayor Conroy J. Heeselman as one of the guest speakers, also Police Chief J. Allan Wood, Superintendent B. C. Van Ingen of the Kingston schools and several other speakers, including school principals.

Riftenbary Awarded Wall Street Job

Candyland building at 324 Wall street, purchased last July by Mrs. Bertha Peckerman of this city, will be completely remodeled by Jay W. Riftenbary, general contractor of 329 Albany avenue, it was announced today.

The announcement was made by Mr. Englander, operator of the United Cut Rate Pharmacy, and son of Mrs. Peckerman, who will remove his business to the Candyland address, when Contractor Riftenbary finishes remodeling the building. Work on the project will start during the first week in January.

"It is our aim to have one of the most modern pharmacies in the Hudson valley," said Mr. Englander. "I think it will be the largest between New York and Albany in size and we will have a full stock of medicines, perfumes, novelties and other articles carried by the leading stores of our kind in the country."

Pope Suffers Relapse Today

Vatican City, Dec. 10 (AP).—It was reliably reported at the Vatican that Pope Pius XI suffered a relapse today from paralysis.

The Holy Father, who was first stricken last Saturday, had been reported as recovering.

A verbal bulletin issued by the Pope's physicians during the morning had said that while the 79-year-old pontiff was remaining in bed, his condition was the same.

Shortly after the relapse was reported, a high Vatican source expressed the opinion that even if His Holiness recovers from the present crisis he never will walk again. Even if he leaves his bed, it was said, the Pope will be compelled to spend the rest of his days in an armchair.

The relapse was understood to have occurred shortly before 7 a. m. Dr. Amanti Milan, the Pope's physician, was hastily summoned and took immediate measures to revive the Holy Father's flagging strength.

The patient was given an injection and a cordial after which he rallied somewhat.

Because of the Holy Father's weakness all visitors were excluded from the papal bed chamber.

3 Found Guilty In Pine Bush Case

Newburgh, N. Y., Dec. 10 (AP).—Three New York city men today faced prison sentences totaling from 30 to 60 years as the minimum and a maximum total of 40 to 120 years after they were found guilty of the $15,000 daylight robbery of the Pine Bush National Bank last May 11.

The verdict was returned by an Orange county court last night against Stewart Wallace, 32; George Phillips, 34, and Charles Reese, 34. Judge Jonathan D. Wilson said he would sentence the men on Monday. A fourth man, John J. Stewart, 34, of New York, is awaiting a decision on his application for a change of venue. A fifth, John Mahoney, of Boston, committed suicide a few days after the robbery.

$2,000,000 More in Taxes.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 10 (AP).—State Tax Commissioner Mark Graves said today New York state had collected

$2,000,000 more in tax on alcoholic beverages for the first five months of the current fiscal year as compared to the same period in 1935-36. Graves said the total revenue was $10,519,127 this year, nearly $3,000,000 above the receipts two years ago. He said the tax on liquor was the largest single item, amounting to $1,150,523 of the $2,177,280 collected last month. The fiscal year begins on July 1.

Offer Highlights In Farm Accounts

Rhine, N. Y., Dec. 9.—A summary of cost-keeping facts from 95 farmers in 34 counties has been compiled by the New York state college of agriculture. These family farms are larger and more productive than the average in the state. Among the highlights gleaned from the accounts are:

The cost of repairs, insurance, taxes, depreciation, and interest on the farm operator's dwelling averaged $309, or $26 a month.

School, county, and town taxes averaged $236 a farm, nearly $20 a month, or one and three-tenths per cent of the value of the farm.

Records were kept of 2,341 hours of farm work by each worker during the year. They averaged eight hours for every day in the year, or 327 nine-hour days, or 294 ten-hour days. This annual average has not varied much during the 22 years in which cost-accounts have been kept.

The cost of operating small trucks was below five cents a mile only on farms where trucks were driven at least 5,000 miles.

Returns for an hour of labor on dairy cows averaged 33 cents. The average cost of producing milk on 60 farms was $1.31 a hundred-weight.

Raising a pullet to the laying age of 20 weeks costs $1.04. It costs 27 cents to produce a dozen eggs. Production on these cost-account farms averaged 146 eggs to the hen, or about 44 more than the state average.

Cabbage, canning-factory peas and tomatoes, gave a high return for labor in 1935 than in 1934, but labor returns were lower for sweet corn and dry beans.

To grow and harvest an acre of tomatoes required 109 hours of labor. Plants set at the rate of 3,000 an acre cost $15 an acre.

Potato yields averaged 155 bushels an acre. Even with relatively high prices for potatoes in 1935, no farm with less than 100 bushels to the acre made any profit.

In spite of better yields, apple growers made less money. This was due mainly to the drop in price from 75 to 60 cents a bushel.

KRUMVILLE.
Krumville, Dec. 9.—Allen Krum of Newburgh spent the week-end at his home in this place.

All are sorry to hear of the illness of Mrs. J. Burgher and hope for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Bether Seiple of New York city spent the week-end at her home in Krumville.

Miss Margaret Schoonmaker and school children are practicing for a Christmas entertainment to be held in the church on Christmas eve, December 24, at 7:30 o'clock. Santa will be present with plenty of oranges and candy.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Ketchner of Kingston were callers in this place Sunday.

Miss Mildred Trowbridge has employment in Kingston.

Mrs. Henry Schlobohm is spending some time with her brother, in Yonkers.

Miss Margaret Schoonmaker spent the week-end with Miss Mabel Wood of Stone Ridge.

It's "Money Population" That Makes Bigger Sales,

In Kingston — every person buys at an annual average rate of $387.67 (as compared with the average rate of $297.10 per person for New York). Bigger sales opportunities exist for every merchant in this city

^{$387.67} Remember This Figure When Planning Your Advertising

Talk about Buying-Power! Look at these figures! Every year—more than $10,888,874.00 are spent in Kingston stores.

This sum represents $2,543,830.00 more than the average 28,038 New York people spend in their stores.

Profits are counted not by number of individuals but by the number of dollars they spend. Greater Buying-Power awaits the newspaper advertising of every Kingston merchant.

Consider the facts. It's "Money Population" that makes bigger sales! The size of your newspaper advertising determines what part of this extra Buying-Power comes into your store!

Varied Activities
At Normal School

New Paltz, Dec. 10.—In the absence of Milton Cohen, president of the Country Life Club, John Farmer presided over the last meeting. Much of the club's activities was learned at this meeting, including the rural communities which surround New Paltz. Members of various 4-H Clubs in the vicinity showed how their candle light services were conducted and helped the members of the Country Life Club to understand the principals upon which the 4-H Club is based. It was decided that each member of the club bring a small ten cent toy to the next meeting and after the meeting the articles are to be gathered together and distributed to the children of the practice school who might otherwise be disappointed on Christmas.

Christmas Party.

The Ko Sdon Ya Christmas party was held in Ko Sdon Ya room on December 8, at 7 o'clock. The room was decorated in red and green and a Christmas tree. The room was temporarily converted into a broadcasting studio representing that of the NBC network. The high spot of the evening consisted of a burlesque on some of the country's favorite programs. One of the members impersonated Santa Claus and distributed gifts to all present. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games and the singing of Christmas carols. The faculty advisers of the organization were the guests of the evening's affair. The committees in charge were: General chairman, Elsie Wheat; refresh-

Forest's Real Friends

Often Thought Enemies.

Berkeley, Cal. — The contention that squirrels and mice, long hunted as forest enemies, play an important part in preventing destruction of forest trees is advanced by Dr. E. C. Van Dyke, professor of entomology at the University of California.

"Squirrels, shrews and mice gather hibernating insects, especially pupae, and store them for food," Dr. Van Dyke said. "Chipmunks likewise gather immense numbers of the predatory Pandora moth."

"Tests show that certain fungus growths and bacteria, long regarded as enemies to trees, actually attack and kill insects that destroy trees."

Flowers should never dominate a room or costume. Rather they should bring out the beauty of the place they decorate or the person who wears them.

MARIAN MARTIN BUTTON-FRONT FROCK
WILL WIN DAUGHTER'S ACCLAIM

PATTERN 9111

Both mother and daughter will love the design of this Marian Martin button-front frock because it's so dainty and demure. Daughter is sure to adore it because of its practical button-front, for she just slips into this fetching frock, buttons it all by herself, and is ready for play or school! A youthful Miss is certain to love, too, on her cute puffed or flared sleeves, cleverly gored panels and gay patch pockets—just right for a little girl's hankie! Mother will find this frock easy to make, and easy to iron—for it spreads out flat when unbuttoned. Choose cotton or wool challis, printed percale or crisp gingham, all grand as "every-day" versions, while velvet or silk would be ideal for a "Sunday School" or party frock. Complete Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart Included.

Pattern 9111 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 2 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

CONQUER YOUR NERVES BEFORE
THEY GET THE BEST OF YOU

Another family row—all because of Dot's high-strung nerves! You can't blame Jim for threatening to leave.

If only Dot could learn to control her nerves, how delightful she'd be! But she wears herself and every one around her to a frazzle. She's fast becoming a "bag of bones" through her needless worry, irritability, sleeplessness and nervous indigestion. She even has headaches and dizziness as a result of her nervous spells.

She tries hard, too, to repress her nervous outbursts—goes around with her emotions all bottled up. Then, pop! When she least expects it, she's making a silly scene.

Repression is the worst possible way to treat overwrought nerves, both doctors and psychologists say. How much better for Dot, if—when the cleaner couldn't bring her dress and Junior snagged his best pants and the potatoes burned—she had sat down for a good cry. Then she'd have felt all shipshape by the time Jim got home, set for a gay evening at the Smith's party. Crying is a fine safety valve for letting off steam.

Our 40-page booklet by a famous physician-psychologist tells how to keep your nerves from getting the better of you. Recognize your symptoms, learn scientific advances in dealing with "nerves," quick fatigue, nervous indigestion, insomnia, vertigo and other nervous disorders.

Your nervous temperament, properly treated, can make you an interesting, fascinating, successful person instead of a wretched, unpopular one.

Send 15c for our booklet, HOW TO AVOID AND OVERCOME NERVOUS TROUBLES, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT

AT OLIVE BRIDGE, DEC. 22

Olive Bridge, Dec. 10.—Rehearsals for the M. E. Sunday school Christmas entertainment are underway, under the direction of the superintendent, Mrs. E. Silkworth, and assistant superintendent, Mrs. William C. Davis. This program will be given on Tuesday evening, December 22, at the M. E. Church beginning at 8 o'clock.

There will be a play entitled "The Christmas Voice," which will be the main feature, the members of the Sunday school who are attending High School will take the main parts in the play.

There will also be various recitations, songs, exercises and a Garland drill by the younger members, and members of the church choir will render special Christmas songs. Santa Claus will be there too. The public is most cordially invited.

Parent-Teacher
Associations

No. 8 P. T. A.

The regular meeting of No. 8 Parent Teacher Association was held Tuesday, December 8, at 3:30. After serving delicious refreshments, the business meeting opened with the singing in unison of "Silent Night."

A communication from the tuberculosis committee was read. The radio committee announced that two radios had been purchased for the schools. It was voted to subscribe to the Parent-Teacher Magazine for the president. The association also voted to purchase the usual Christmas trees and send the usual Christmas baskets.

Friday evening, December 4, several pupils under the escort of Mrs. Mezes, visited the home of Mrs. Bonesteel to see and discuss pictures of art. Miss Goldie Markle, a member of this group, gave an account of their meeting.

Mrs. Bonesteel talked on soap and wood carving, masks, plaster, paria and clay fixtures. She showed many of these carvings and figures made by Marcia Brown and Mary Dipsalma.

Rooms 2, 7, 9, 10, 11, 13 were tie for the attendance banner.

Miss Nash announced the following program, which was well given by the pupils of the school: Song, Cradle Hymn, Marian McGrath, Room 3; recitation, Giving Thanks, Josephine Montone, Room 2; song, Dear Little Snowbirds, boys and girls of Room 5; recitation, Why I'm Thankful, boys and girls of Room 2; play, Mother Goose Health Play, Room 3. Characters: Mother Goose, Dorothy Luck; Tommy Tucker, Vance Rich; Mistress Mary, Mary Schoonmaker; Tom, Tom, Fred Kirk; Little Bo Peep, Doris St. Oler; a scholar, John Boulukos; Jack and Jill, Joseph Edwards and Miriam McGrath. Violin solo, "On Wings of Song," Rosamond Burger, accompanied by Alma Burger.

Say what you will about horses and buggies, they still have a place in the American business scheme. They're back, anyway, in Ashtabula county, O., and are making good. Salesmen use 'em to sell stoves around through the farming country.

Will Take Next Point Examination

Among candidates who have been designated to take entrance examinations for Post, according to an announcement by the War Department, are two from Kingston. They are: Frederick Home Sargent Tate, Hurley Road, Kingston. (By presidential designation). Joseph Kerantoi Tate, Jr., private, Headquarters, 16th Field Artillery, Kingston.

The entrance examinations for Post Point are scheduled to be held on March 2, 1937.

In Japan, it is said, two years are necessary sometimes to have a telephone installed after the order is given.

Supervisors Hear Committee Report

Town and County Accounts reported that the returned unpaid first installment sewer assessments of Lloyd were correct as reported and that the total sum was $1,322.44. The same committee also reported that unpaid water rents in the following towns were correct: Marlborough, Marlborough Water District $518.50; Shandaken, Phoenixia Water District $526.80; Shawangunk, Walkill Water District $156.00. The committee recommended that these amounts be assessed against the usual rate of interest and that the tax when collected be returned to the officials of the special district through the supervisor of the town.

The committee on town and county accounts also reported the following returned school taxes and recommended that the amounts be assessed against the property in the various towns, together with the usual 7%. The total unpaid school tax for the county is $62,746.19 which with the 7% added amounts to a total of $66,711.54. The amount of unpaid school tax in the various towns is as follows:

Denning	$ 2,045.57
Esopus	5,457.21
Gardiner	218.48
Hardenbergh	1,270.71
Hurley	1,688.94
Kingston Town	1,262.56
Lloyd	3,051.60
Marbletown	724.33
Marlborough	8,375.73
New Paltz	3,909.21
Olive	225.07
Plattekill	1,727.88
Rocheater	1,748.87
Rosendale	1,464.82
Saugerties	7,572.90
Shandaken	6,262.90
Shawangunk	1,714.78
Ulster	6,535.18
Wawarsing	5,000.71
Woodstock	2,498.44

Total $62,746.19

The report of the committee was received and filed.

The committee on County Auditor reported bills in the amount of $11.28 and moved that such amount be assessed on the county. Over.

Supervisor Wadlin moved that the sum of $2,500 be assessed and levied on the county for the Veterans Memorial Hospital at Ellenville. Over.

This is $250 more than last year.

Clerk Fred Stang announced that the committee on salaries would meet Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the committee on Appropriations on Monday at 2 p. m.

Wally Silent On Abdication

phone call. And, although there were constant reports that King Edward should he abdicate, would come here, the servants insisted there were no preparations for an extra guest.

Detectives Stand Guard

Eight French detectives stood guard outside the villa. Inside were British plainclothesmen. Curious groups collected on the adjacent roads. The detectives listened in amused silence while one old man, wearing East-Indian styled trousers fitting close below the knee, delivered an oration urging the British crown crisis "be referred to the League of Nations."

Even as London buzzed with word of his imminent abdication, the twice divorced American woman reiterated her willingness to give him up "if it will solve the problem."

Tension Grows

Tension grew. The Riviera villa of her hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers, hummed with excitement, marked by swift, secret movements of visitors from London. "L'Affaire Simpson" appeared definitely pointed toward imminent climax.

Rumors were everywhere. One went so far as to say that Mrs. Simpson already had departed — for where, no one seemed to know. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers denied this emphatically. So did her spokesman, Lord Brownlow.

"On my word of honor," Lord Brownlow said. "She has not departed and has no plans to depart."

Gendarmes on Guard

Gendarmes remained on guard, at any rate; and the men from Scotland Yard, picked to protect Mrs. Simpson, were still here.

Her lawyer, Goddard, who flew from London yesterday — a journey regarded as so precarious for him that his personal physician, Dr. W. Douglas Kirkwood, accompanied him — would not discuss the purpose of his sudden visit.

The departure of the lawyer and doctor and the lawyer's clerk indicated that whatever their business may have been, it was completed. Lord Brownlow said Mrs. Simpson had "signed no documents."

Reports Are Denied

London reports that Mrs. Simpson planned to request the courts to speed action toward making her divorce decree effect were authoritatively denied. The divorce, obtained on charges that Ernest Aldrich Simpson had been unfaithful to his marriage vows, does not become effective until April 27, of next year.

Only by "a general or special order" could the divorce date be advanced; and such an order would be made only after the trial judge and the king's proctor had been satisfied that such action was desirable.

No one outside the Rogers Villa had seen Mrs. Simpson in many hours. Yesterday there were reports, both affirmed and denied, that the former Baltimore girl had slipped out for a short motor ride.

Telephone calls to the Villa last night were answered in a woman's voice, the speaker identifying herself as Mrs. Rogers.

"Mrs. Simpson is standing right beside me," she said; but Mrs. Simpson herself did not come to the phone.

Charles M. Larkin Killed by Auto

Charles M. Larkin, 60, of 27 Lutheran street, Newburgh, was killed Tuesday night when he was struck by a car in front of 236 Broadway, Newburgh. He was a former Kingston resident.

Andrew F. Sabo, 25, of RFD 2, Marlborough, driver of the car, was arrested for criminal negligence in operating an auto, on complaint of Coroner Andrew S. Calyer.

The injured man was taken immediately to the hospital by Detective Sergeant Howard Haight, his son-in-law, but died from skull fracture before he could receive medical attention.

Sabo, in recorder's court in Newburgh on Wednesday, asked for an adjournment to seek counsel and upon Coroner Calyer's suggestion, the arraignment was set for Saturday morning. The driver was released on summons.

Larkin was crossing to the north side of the street when he was struck. Sabo, on his way to work in the Fabrikoid plant, was driving west on Broadway. The impact bent a fender and a headlight on the car. Policeman Harry Lenahan, with Sabo, went to the aid of the injured man, and placed him in the police car which had been proceeding west not far behind the Sabo auto.

A native of Kingston, Mr. Larkin came to Newburgh about 24 years ago as a shipbuilder in the Marvel Shipyard. He later worked in the Fabrikoid plant, and, with the advent of the Muskegon Machine Co., was employed there until his death.

A son of the late Matthew J. and Jane Kiernan Larkin of Kingston, he is survived by his wife, Evelyn McEwen Larkin of Newburgh; a sister, Mrs. Herbert Cramer, of Kingston; two daughters, Mrs. Howard Haight of Newburgh, and Mrs. Ruth Larkin of Ashbury Park; and three sons, Charles B. and John L. of Newburgh, and William F. of Ashbury Park, and nieces, nephews and grandchildren.

Services will be held Friday morning at the Haight residence, 24 Columbus avenue, Newburgh. At 11 a. m. a requiem high Mass will be offered in St. Patrick's Church, Newburgh. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Kingston.

Obedient Duke of York, New King

India, Japan, Africa, South America and the United States — on a series of ten "empire-welding" journeys that took him over more than 200,000 miles, brother "Bertie" remained at home.

"Bertie," quiet, self-effacing, methodical, exemplified the Tennysonian motto: "They also serve who only stand and wait."

"Let's Get On"

Edward, brisk, nervous, a human dynamo of swift-paced energy, snapped his own motto: "Let's get on with it!"

Take two speeches by the closely-reared brothers — both dictums packed with hard common-sense, but how different!

Said the flash-minded Edward, when eyebrow-raising friends in England chided him for calling his famous "E. P." ranch in Canada a "ranch" — with an Americanized flat "a" accent:

"Ranch is large than a 'rawneb' — and is a paying proposition!"

But if Edward shines as a ray, breezy "Prince Charming," stealing the limelight from the rather colorless Duke of York, an example of Edward's capacity for human understanding and of his own human worth is still worth remembering — the poignant story told from the pulpit of every church in England a few years ago:

On visiting a war veterans' hospital, in Canada, Edward suspected he had not been shown all the patients. He had heard of a "ward of the living dead." The hospital officials protested. It was too horrible. Edward insisted.

And presently he stood at the bedside of a human atrocity, a relic of the war — maimed and disfigured beyond recognition. Grief-stricken, mute and deaf.

Edward turned pale. But he did not flinch. He leaned over, and gently he kissed the blind, hideous face.

A bit of charcoal in a shallow bowl will help to keep the water sweet and the flowers fresh.

Tall, dark and handsome Western William has the unenviable job of keeping Max West from appearing in "The Best Young Man," the current stage star's latest comedy, which begins on Friday Night. Special Preview at the Broadway Theatre. — Advertisement.

BANKS HELD FOR GRAND JURY IN GUN CLUB BURGLARY CASE

William Banks, 16, one of the four young men held for burglarizing the building of the Ulster County Gun Club, was arraigned before Justice John Watrka Wednesday and was held for the grand jury on a charge of burglary in the third degree. His three companions, Orville Pallen, Elmer S. Pallen and Leighton Winchell, had previously been arraigned before Justice Watrka on the same charge and held for the grand jury. Elmer Pallen and Winchell furnishing bail in the amount of $1,000 each. At that time young Banks was held for further examination.

Tension, Hysteria In Commons

country, my duty to him, not only as a councillor but as friend."

Wrestle With Problem

He related how he and the monarch had wrestled with the problem as man to man, the king insisting they settle the whole issue between themselves.

Cheers rang through the chamber as Baldwin declared:

"I reminded him of what I have often told him and his brothers in years past, and that is this: The crown in this country through centuries has been deprived of many of its prerogatives but today—while that is true—it stands far more than it ever has in its history. "The integrity is not only the last link of empire—it is a guarantee, so long as it exists in that integrity, against the many evils that have afflicted and afflicted other countries."

Too Deep For Tears

In the tense House of Lords, the venerable Archbishop of Canterbury raised his voice to declare:

"This is an occasion when our thoughts are too deep for tears, certainly too deep for words."

Then the prime minister, united with Baldwin against morganatic marriage for the wearer of the crown, praised the "dignity, calmness and courage" of the Queen Mother.

Before he arose, Lord Halifax had read to the peers the correspondence which passed between cabinet and king in which Baldwin and his ministers vainly sought to change Edward's "irrevocable decision."

When he had finished, Baldwin, as a sign of the conciliatory nature of the king's renunciation of his throne, took out a pencilled note received from Edward this morning.

It was interpreted as the last word from the sovereign.

The Duke of York and the King, the note said, "always have been on the best terms as brothers. The King is confident the Duke deserves, and will receive, the support of the whole empire."

Makes Historic Choice

By The Associated Press
London, Dec. 10.—England's handsome bachelor king, torn between a woman's love and an empire's throne, made his choice today.

There was no statement either from him or his ministers before Parliament convened; yet most of England expected that choice to be but one thing—abdication.

A lingering hope remained in some quarters, however, that there still might be some other way out.

Lights burned all night at Fort Belvedere. They burned, too, at No. 10 Downing street, where the ministers met; and in the nearby Dominions building; and in far away capitals of the Dominions where ministries awaited one of the empire's most fateful decisions.

Messengers Race

Messengers raced on motorcycles through the cold fog of early morning, keeping communication between the king and his ministers until only a few hours before dawn.

And with the dawn there came to Fort Belvedere the haggard Duke of York, to whom his brother's abdication would mean a crown.

The soldierly, slender younger brother, the Duke of Gloucester, followed; and finally the young Duke of Kent.

While the royal brothers gathered at the king's private estate, the government offices in Downing street began humming anew.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, worn by the most astonishing week in England's peacetime history, slept late. The home secretary, Sir John Simon, was the premier's first visitor.

Queen Mother Secluded

Secluded at Marlborough House, taking no part in the last minute family parley, was the king's mother, Queen Mary.

Looking gray and stooped from the weight of the tremendous responsibility resting on his shoulders, Prime Minister Baldwin called on Queen Mary shortly after noon to tell her of the momentous news he was ready to impart to her son's subjects.

His stern face broke into a partial smile and he raised his hat in acknowledgment of the cheers of the crowd as he left Marlborough House.

At York's Piccadilly residence, the arrival of several great bouquets of flowers brought knowing cheers from another throng. There were more cheers for the Duchess of Kent, soon to become a mother, who reached the house at 12:30 with a lady in waiting.

Struggle With Crowd

A great crowd struggled with police in little Downing street as the premier departed. Forced from the lane, the surging mass blocked traffic in Whitehall, leading to fears of serious scenes.

Across the channel, at Cannes, France, the American woman whose love for a king has affected an empire of 495,000,000 human beings, talked by telephone with London from her villa of seclusion.

Then she announced, through Herman Rogers, her host, that there was not "the remotest possibility" the monarch would join her on the Riviera, "now or later."

Remote Union

This was interpreted in some quarters as meaning the reunion, should Edward choose both abdication and exile, would be in a more remote part of the world. But, Rogers said, Mrs. Simpson expects to remain at Cannes until after Christmas.

Mrs. Simpson's lawyer, Theodore Goddard, flew back to London after conferring with his client. Spokesmen insisted Mrs. Simpson "signed no documents," and the attorney would not divulge the purpose of his visit.

Reports that Mrs. Simpson contemplated asking the court to hasten the final decree of divorce—she does not become free to marry until April 27—again were denied, but persisted.

Even as London read headlines such as "Abdication Fears," a spokesman for Mrs. Simpson reiterated that she was still ready to step aside "if that will solve the problem."

As the morning went on, the crowds in Downing street grew. Greatly augmented police forces already were in action when Prime Minister Baldwin's second visitor, Ramsay MacDonald, arrived.

1,500 Policemen on Duty

There were more than 1,500 policemen in the Downing street area. Parliament was called to meet at 2:45 p. m. (9:45 a. m. E.S.T.), the usual hour. Premier Baldwin was to make the king's decision known shortly afterward.

Arrangements were made, it was understood, for every contingency. Special legislation was in readiness to safeguard the throne should King Edward take the unprecedented step of voluntary abdication.

There even were bills ready, it was said, to prevent the possibility of any subsequent claim being made to the throne by a ruler who abdicated, or his heirs.

A strong police guard was placed about the residence of the Duke of York at 145 Piccadilly.

As noon neared and the hour of decision approached, all London was on edge.

Almost at the same time the plane from Paris arrived bearing Mrs. Simpson's lawyer, representatives of the king drove up to the residence of the prime minister in Downing street.

Alternatives Possible

While abdication was uppermost in all minds, it was not overlooked that there were other avenues open to England's king.

Ze could:

Call for a showdown fight with Baldwin and his government, again demanding enactment of legislation enabling a Morganatic union. Edward requested the premier to introduce such a measure; Baldwin refused, thus initiating the empire crisis.

Demand the resignation of the Baldwin government, name a new cabinet and attempt to push through the desired legislation.

Renounce his love for Mrs. Simpson and remain on the throne. She twice has said she is willing to sacrifice her affection for the monarch to save the throne.

Before dawn, through fog-blanketed streets which dimmed street lamps to an eerie glow, members began converging on the houses of Parliament. Early arrival was the only hope of many to gain a seat.

There are not enough places in the ancient halls of the House of Commons for all its members.

Takes No Chances

Scotland Yard took no chances. The force patrolling Whitehall, Downing street and the vicinity of the houses of Parliament was doubled.

More than 1,500 police were stationed in the district.

Parliament was called to meet at the usual hour, 2:45 p. m. (9:45 a. m., eastern standard time).

Baldwin, who has conferred with Edward six times during the mounting crisis of the last eight days, was expected shortly thereafter to inform the world what the monarch had chosen to do.

It was the 224th day of the reign of King Edward VIII, who automatically assumed leadership of the nation and the empire five minutes before midnight, January 20, when his father, George V, died at snow-crosted Sandringham House in Norfolk.

The dramatic convening of Parliament followed a tense day of dramatic developments.

Through the early morning fog which enshrouded most of southern and central England, a military dispatch rider went from No. 10 Downing to Fort Belvedere, where Edward has been in closely-guarded retirement since last week-end.

Official Business

On the back of his sputtering machine the rider carried a huge black box marked with a large red seal, the designation that he was on official business.

Rumor said he was carrying to Edward papers whose signing would pave the way for his abdication and make him free to dash to France for a reunion with Mrs. Simpson. Another unconfirmed report said he had already signed the papers.

Still another said he already had left the country, possibly never to return, but there was no verification.

Late last night, however, a luggage van pulled away from the large white gates at the front entrance to Fort Belvedere and headed for London. It was heavily laden with luggage.

There were reports that Edward was planning to fly to France before Baldwin's appearance in Commons. Heavy fog hung over most of the airports.

Other developments led to the empire's fears that Edward would leave the throne.

Heard Final Decision

The cabinet, hastily assembled near midnight, was believed to have heard the king's final decision from Baldwin. This will form the basis of the premier's statement in Commons today.

The Queen Mother Mary yesterday saw her son under great secrecy in what was believed a farewell.

The meeting occurred at the royal lodge, Windsor, three miles from Belvedere.

The king drove there through fog and over icy roads on the first trip he has made from Belvedere since going there to make up his mind.

The Dukes of York and Kent also attended the poignant royal family meeting, which lasted an hour.

White-faced, sober representatives of the Dominions visited Baldwin at No. 10 Downing street for final information before the premier's Commons appearance. The Dominions hold the trump cards in whatever disposition is made of the throne.

The opposition leaders, Clement R. Attlee, Labor, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, also saw Baldwin.

What Stand To Take

The Irish Free State cabinet, which hitherto had held aloof from the constitutional battle raging between king and premier, held a long emergency meeting. There were strong indications the ministers were concerned with what stand to take in the event York is proclaimed new ruler of the empire.

No meeting of the cabinet was scheduled prior to the convening of Commons. Informed quarters interpreted this as meaning the final word had come from Edward and that only Baldwin's revelation of it remained.

The British press, supported by the Press Association, British news-gathering organization, and Reuters prepared the public by saying that abdication "is foreshadowed by the trend of events."

The activities of Walter T. Monckton, legal adviser to the King, who has made a number of trips back and forth from Belvedere to Downing street, drew attention. Monckton is attorney-general for the Duchy of Cornwall, from which Edward derives part of his income.

Editorials in almost all provincial newspapers prepared their readers for abdication. All stressed the fact that despite sorrow at seeing Edward renounce the throne, his going would not weaken the empire.

Strictest Secrecy

It was believed in informed quarters that the strictest secrecy with which Baldwin has handled the whole matter of the empire crisis presages the introduction of urgent legislation enabling the quick proclamation of the Duke of York as King with a minimum of repercussions.

In the event of abdication, it was believed parliament at once would be asked to pass laws safeguarding his tenure on the throne.

Otherwise if Edward abdicates and marries Wallis Simpson, it was contended in some quarters, he still may be regarded as rightful ruler of the British domain.

That point was raised in commons when a member pointed out that members of parliament, judges, police, soldiers, sailors and others in public and semi-public life took an oath of allegiance to the person of Edward himself.

Such an oath, informed sources said, binds the subjects to the person of Edward and to the crown as an institution.

Will Press Legislation

It was believed that if Baldwin announces Edward's abdication, he forthwith will press for the passage of legislation solving all these problems. After being published textually in the house of commons tonight, both houses of parliament would be asked to pass it through all its stages by Friday.

In this case, it would be possible for MPs to take a new oath either Saturday or Monday.

Amendments to the act of settlement—which governs the order of succession to the throne and specifies marriage regulations for the royal family—also would be necessary to cover the contingency of any issue from a marriage of Edward and Wallis Simpson.

Children of the royal family, such as Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, daughters of the Duke and Duchess of York, thus would be protected in the order of succession against any possible children of the union of Edward and the lady of his choice.

Another point to be settled—unless Baldwin and his advisers have reached an agreement with Edward—was the financial position of an outgoing monarch.

Presented at Court

The couple first met after she, the wife of Ernest Aldrich Simpson, ships broker and former officer in one of the king's own regiments of guards, was presented at court before King George and Queen Mary.

Wallis Simpson, admired in society as a sparkling conversationalist and a graceful dancer, soon attracted the king, a connoisseur of both. They began to be seen in public together, often accompanied by Simpson.

Talk of Edward's new love was slow in trickling through to the general public, which even when it heard, appeared to care little, for he then was not yet king.

On a misty January morning when Edward was proclaimed throughout the city as new king and emperor after the death of his father, watchers said they saw her look out from behind a curtain at St. James' palace, where Edward shortly before had met and been presented to his "accession council."

Gossips' Tongues Wag

Gossips' tongues wagged a little faster then, if Edward now was king—and the conduct of the leader of the Dominions "on which the never sets" may be impeccable.

Last summer Edward decided upon a Mediterranean cruise and Wallis Simpson was among the guests who boarded the luxurious yacht with him.

Friends of the Simpsons confirmed that Wallis ever returned to their London flat after he vacationed on a cruise. It was known that she sometime occupied a room in a fashionable London hotel.

The flat two months ago was closed, the Simpsons breaking housekeeping. The husband moved to the Guards Club and Wallis to a home in Cumberland Terrace, near Regent's Park. His only a short automobile drive from Buckingham Palace.

In mid-October, it was learned that Mrs. Simpson had filed suit for divorce, the grounds being misconduct, the only charge possible under English law.

Not a word was printed in the British press.

On October 27 a decree nisi of divorce was granted for Mrs. Simpson, sitting with her husband in the court room, spectators had charges of adultery against her husband. The name of the co-respondent was not given in court.

Last Message is In Solemn Words

was to be vividly brisk and modern. A "man's man," a bachelor and impatient of excessive kowtowing he upset several traditions in the first days of his reign and within six weeks started his realm by mentioning "the contingency of marriage" in a message to parliament. Previously he had given every indication of intention to be the first unmarried sovereign since the days of Queen Elizabeth and the first real bachelor king since William II, successor to William the Conqueror. But the title of Prince of Wales, reserved for the sons of sovereigns, had lapsed with his accession and he was especially urged that he follow the example of 14 of his predecessors who married after ascending the throne.

Yet in this respect he indicated a willingness to heed the calls of custom. In several other incidents he showed himself inclined to break the chains of tradition.

"The clock that clock!" In three words, uttered as one of his first commands within a few hours of his father's death, he brushed aside one of the customs of the old regime. For 300 years, the clock at Sandringham House, in Norfolk, where George V died, had pointed half an hour fast, dating back to a morning when Edward VII ordered them set ahead as a reproach to late-rising guests who appeared tardily for the morning's shooting.

George V had continued the custom. But when that patriarchal monarch's life ended at five minutes before midnight on January 30, 1936, the new king signalled the dawn of a faster-paced era almost immediately.

At 8 a. m., the following morning, Sandringham clocks once more were conformed to Greenwich time.

First King To Travel By Plane

Three hours later headlines announced: "The King Flies to London"—the first king in English history to travel by plane.

The next day, pointedly disregarding age-old custom, he returned from London to Sandringham not in a special train, as royal usage decreed, but in an ordinary first-class railway carriage. "Like any other mortal," he might have added characteristically, "instead of a gilded puppet."

In his first message to parliament he set aside another precedent by addressing the national legislature in the intimate personal pronoun "I" instead of the traditional royal "We."

The day after his father's funeral he conferred with representatives of foreign governments who had come to London for the rites. The list included Carol II of Rumania, whose personal escapades had made him persona non grata to King Edward's father; King Boris of Bulgaria; Baron von Neurath, foreign minister of Nazi Germany; Maxim Litvinoff, commissar of foreign affairs for the Soviet Union; Prince Ernest Starhemberg, vice-chancellor of Austria, and Britain's own foreign minister, Anthony Eden.

Thus repeatedly, but without violating the tenets of good taste, he showed that he intended to "be king," as he once expressed it.

Four years of World War service in Flanders, Italy and Egypt started him on the serious business of being a king, transforming him from a gay, light-hearted Cambridge undergraduate. "In those years I found my manhood," he said.

He came home to a country proud of victory but already sagging under the weakening effects of its sacrifices in blood and treasure. To him was given the task of linking the far-flung British dominions and colonies more firmly to the throne and Union

Jack, symbol of their kinship and unity.

For more than a decade then he worked like a Trojan, bearing messages to British citizens far afield and to other nations, such as the United States, Japan, Peru, Bolivia, Chile, Argentina and Brazil. He became "England's international salesman No. 1," traveling more than 100,000 miles on 10 extended trips to the 14 years following the war, a Marco Polo existence that won him the nickname of "the suitcase prince."

His first visit to the United States came in the late summer of 1919, when he was on his way to Canada. On that occasion New York, just swinging into its routine for welcoming distinguished visitors, dressed itself in its best bunting and showered him with ticker tape.

On that journey too he bought a ranch in the foothills of the Canadian Rockies. He saw it the second time in 1923 when he made an incognito trip and again the next year when he made a private journey to America. On this latter occasion he was on a holiday and most of his hours were devoted to recreation, the chief exception being a call on President Coolidge at the White House.

Workers' Poverty Decried.

In the intervals of these journeys he explored the nooks and crannies of the United Kingdom. When post-war distress settled upon industrial Britain, he went from village to village in the coal mining regions and from town to town in the shipbuilding, cotton mill and steel districts. He talked with workmen, their wives and children, entered their poor homes. His frank horror and blunt reports of some of the conditions which came to his notice were greeted by the workers as a decided aid in getting a fuller appreciation of their plight before the nation.

When his father's near-fatal illness in 1928 brought Edward dashing back 6,000 miles in 10 days from Dares-Salaam, East Africa, the duties of state devolved more and more on his shoulders and compelled him to give up his tours abroad.

He continued to work indefatigably at home, and his reputation as the hardest-working man in England was a rebuke to the jeering challenge of Jock McGovern, the fiery "royalty-baiting" M. P., who shocked the nation in 1933, at the opening of parliament, by shouting at ermine-robed peers and peeresses, in the presence of King George and Queen Mary: "You are a gang of lazy, idle parasites living on wealth created by other people!"

With quick wit and absolute truth, in his own case, Edward commented: "Parasites maybe, but idle—never!" But while Edward valiantly and conscientiously played his regal part through his formative years, he balked when too much formality, royal ritual or other symbolism of his position was thrust upon him. Long-winded flattering speeches at banquets bored him to distraction and on one occasion when a fumbling mayor concluded a flowery introduction by saying, "And so we welcome you not only as His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, but also—er—er—them—" the then prince cut off long experience with such efforts, audibly prompted him: "We welcome you for yourself."

Snooze Rebuked by Campfire Singer

He despised snobbery. Once, when a shocked deputation of "high society" people in Panama pointed out that he had been dancing with a drugstore assistant, the prince replied, "Well, it must be a jolly fine drugstore!"

He was equally set against affectation, even if it meant hitting the drawing board with his own language. He used the American pronunciation when speaking of his ranch in Canada, instead of calling it a "ranch." He scornfully remarked that a ranch was larger than a "ranch" and was a paying proposition.

He never was happier than when he found himself in the "great open spaces," on his Canadian ranch or on the African veldt, where he could sit near a campfire at night, strumming a banjo-uke and singing in his high-pitched but rather pleasant voice:

"Who's wonderful, who's marvelous Miss Annabelle Lee.

He had chatted with a pigmy chief in the Congo, swum in the Nile, sailed an out-rigger surf canoe on the Gold Coast, flown from Khartoum to Cairo, climbed 10,000 feet up the Andes snows, trailed through African jungles, scaled the Rockies, descended into gold mines, stuck pigs in India, driven a golf ball off the top of the Great Pyramid, ridden with Canadian cowpunchers, thrown a boomerang in Australia, met admirals in Japan, Presidents in Washington, millionaires in New York, and danced and made merry in most of the gay capitals of the world.

For millions, the world over, it was difficult to think of him suddenly, in January, 1936, as no longer the still youthful Prince of Wales but as king-emperor of a far-flung realm, embracing 450,000,000 people.

As if sensing this feeling, Edward in his first radio message, broadcast March 1, 1936, to the dominions, India, the dependencies and colonies, said:

"I am better known to most of you as the Prince of Wales, the man who during the war and since has had the opportunity of getting to know nearly every country of the world under all conditions and circumstances."

"And although I now speak to you as the king, I am still the same man who has had the experience, and whose constant effort will be to promote the welfare of his fellow men."

Born in Victoria's Reign

Queen Victoria was still on the British throne when the prince, first of her great-grandchildren, was born on June 23, 1894. He came into the world at White Lodge, a modest royal estate in the middle of Richmond Park, a dozen miles from London.

Three weeks later he was christened by the Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of the established church. Seven names were bestowed upon the infant: Edward, Albert, Christian, George, Andrew, Patrick, David.

Edward was the name of his grandfather, later to become Edward VII; Albert was his great-grandfather, consort of Queen Victoria; Christian was the king of Denmark, whence the princeling's grandmother, Alexandra, had come to England as a bride; the other names, George, Andrew, Patrick and David, were those of the patrilineal saints of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales.

Formally, he was "His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales," and he always signed officially as "Edward, P." But to his family and to his intimate friends he was "David."

With Queen Victoria he always was a favorite and was the one person who could refuse to do what "Granny" asked and escape the effects of her royal displeasure. From childhood he had a will of his own, could say "No" with finality and follow his own bent in life.

A governess in boyhood and tutors in boyhood prepared him for college. He matriculated at Magdalen College, Oxford, but fell in with a rather gay set of young aristocrats and his mother, hearing tales of their escapades, brought about his transfer to Cambridge. The World War ended his college days, just as it did that of many another young man.

War Service Halts Play Years.

The prince was 20 when he went to France with his regiment of Grenadier Guards, remained in that zone for more than a year and then, in May, 1916, was transferred to the staff of the commanding general on the Italian front. A month later he went on to Egypt as a staff captain. Throughout his service he chafed against regulations and orders which kept him from the firing line, but for reasons of state and dynastic considerations he was retained on staff duty.

In his busy post-war years the prince found time for much of the social and outdoor pastimes which service in the field had denied him in his early '20's. Dancing was a constant diversion. He excelled at no sport but took part in many.

Boxing, swimming, tennis, racquets and golf were on his list but his passion was for polo, riding to hounds or competing in polo-to-polo races. He came so many "croppers" at hedge, brook or wall and each fall was attended with such publicity that the American public knew him as much for the dives which he took off his horses as for his accomplishments in public service.

Finally public worry over the risks he was running coupled with a desire to set an example of economy in stressful years, induced him in 1923 to auction his stables.

He retained only one hunter and thereafter took part only in occasional hunts.

Aviation and motor boating were other hobbies. He took flying lessons, added a pilot to his personal staff, maintained his own plane and used the air for many of his hops about Britain or his short jaunts to the continent.

A Condemned Bachelor.

That the prince never married was a subject of concern for years to thousands of his prospective subjects. In that time his name was linked with that of first one eligible princess and then with another, sometimes with young women of British noble families and even with commoners, but no hint came from Wales himself that he had any idea of giving up his state of single blessedness.

In time the talk died down, especially after the eldest of his three brothers, the Duke of York, married and became the father of Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose. The heir himself once rejected this change in opinion when he remarked:

"After all, England had a virgin queen; why not a bachelor king?"

Next in line to him, therefore, was the Duke of York and the latter's children and the elder of these granddaughters of King George came to be looked upon as the eventual queen.

Even a hardened bar has to take off his hat when he meets a queen.

No Clue to Killer
Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP)—Nearly 24 hours of continuous investigation left authorities without a definite clue today in what police called the "vengeance" killing of Adam Parillo, 40-year old former Canadian prison inmate. Assistant District Attorney John S. Doyle said Parillo's movements had been traced until 3 a. m. yesterday, two hours and twenty minutes before he was found dying in a hospital doorway. He died a short time later with four bullet wounds.

Stork Victor in Race With Bus

Mr. Lacy was waiting in Albany for the Greyhound New York bus, but when it arrived just before midnight, Mrs. Lacy was not on board.

What Mr. Lacy—Thomas C. Lacy of 16 Ten Broeck street—wanted, however, was first-hand news from the driver, Edward Drumm of Albany, about what happened on the bus last night at Goshen.

Mrs. Lacy is in Goshen Hospital. In a nearby room is a gurgling young fellow weighing eight pounds, who was not expected until Christmas.

Mr. Drumm and Mr. and Mrs. Lacy are unanimous in their declaration that last night marks a high in unique experiences for them. The other passengers on the bus added their hearty endorsement to the view.

Wednesday night, Mrs. Lacy started back to Albany from a visit to her former home at Covington, Va. Mr. Lacy, a wood dealer, was at home here with their five children.

Changing buses in New York last night, Mrs. Lacy began the last part of her trip up the west shore of the Hudson river. As the bus approached the Goshen section, she became ill, and told the driver.

At Maybrook, six miles from Goshen, Mr. Drumm stepped on the gas. He had fought storm and slippery roads, but never an emergency like this, he said.

Into the village of Goshen they went and the bus drew up before a physician's office. The driver asked the passengers to leave the bus, all except one woman, who attended Mrs. Lacy.

When the physician reached the patient's side, there were two patients. He sent them immediately to the hospital. Both were accorded the usual "doing well" report.

Informed by telephone, Mr. Lacy paced the floor.

"I'll say I'm surprised," he said.

Army. "I'm just wringing perspiration out of my clothes, waiting for the bus driver. We did not expect the new arrival until Christmas. I'm going to Goshen in the morning."

The Lacey came to Albany four years ago from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., just across the Virginia border from Covington.

Only 1 Case Ready, Trial Term Delayed

Justice Sydney Foster, presiding at the trial term of Supreme court here, made another attempt to get the trial term started this morning, but met with little success. Only one case on a long day calendar was ready and that was held until 11 o'clock in order to give out of town counsel time to get here.

When court convened at 10 o'clock the calendar called and No. 155, Frank Ferraro, etc., doing business under the name of Ferraro's Bus Line, against Hudson Transit Corporation, a breach of contract action, was announced ready if held until 11 o'clock and a recess was taken until that time.

Brinnier & Elsworth appeared as attorney of record for plaintiff and A. J. Cook for the defendant.

Before taking the recess Justice Foster inquired whether there was any case on the general calendar which was ready. He stated that there was no reason to drag on day after day with the term if nothing was to be done.

"We have done practically nothing so far this week," said Justice Foster.

Several cases were added to the day calendar with the provisions that they be held until later, some until next Monday.

Bobby Jones Scares Mayor Into Drills

Latest reports are that Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman is brushing up on his bowling form to be in tip top shape for Bobby Jones, the 14-year-old alley expert who boasts of a single of 157.

Young Bobby, son of Addison Jones, and the first citizen will oppose each other Friday night at Emerick's Silver Palace Bowling alley in a charity match for the Salvation Army.

Besides the Heiselman-Jones pairing, there will be a red hot match between Lou Smith's Chryslers and Jones's Delrymen, strong rivals in the Silver Palace League.

SEVERAL CASES BEFORE
JUDGE CULLOTON TODAY

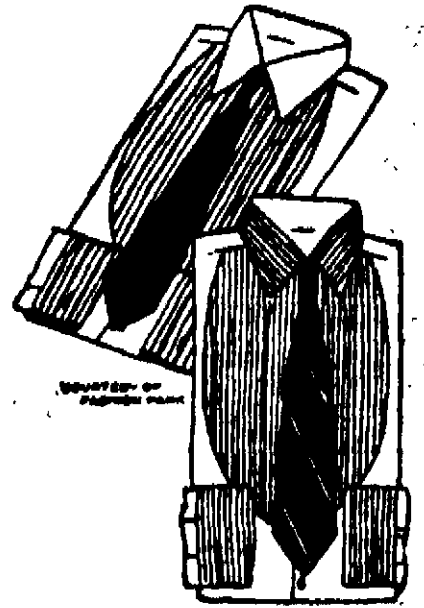

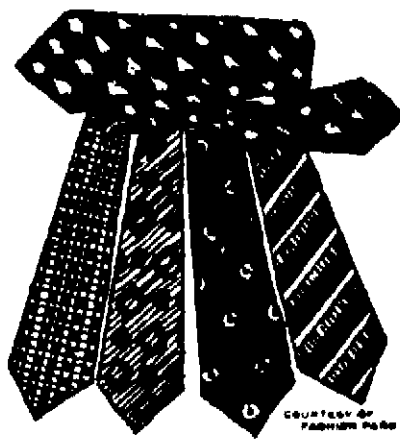

Charles Staccio of Glasco, arrested on a charge of failing to observe a full stop sign Wednesday, had his hearing set down for Friday in police court. William Stafford, who claims Kingston as his home, and sells soap for a living, was arraigned on a charge of using the hallway at 312 Wall street as a bedroom, appeared in court. He is badly crippled and was suffering so from a cold that he could not talk above a whisper. Judge Culloton, after hearing his story, held the case open to see if arrangements could not be made to have him admitted to the City Home. Francis J. Fagan of Buffalo, arrested for public intoxication, was sentenced to five days in jail.

Teachers and Shirtmakers Lead Y. M. C. A. Bowling Leagues

The Y. M. C. A. Bowling League has just completed the first round with the High School Faculty winner in the American League and the Fuller Shirt Co. No. 2 leader in the National League. With the alleys in the best shape in many years the enthusiasm of the players has been at a high peak. Several 200 games and over have been rolled with three game averages better than former years. The leader of the American League will have to watch out in the second round which starts this evening or the runner-up, Central Hudson, may turn the tables. In the National League, the Freeman Publishing Co. team battled hard and won the second place and shows promise of better results in the new round. The standings at the end of the first round are as follows:

Scout Attractions Animals

Many fur-bearing animals, such as the marten, mink and fisher, are far too wary to go near a trap set in the ordinary way. To catch them a scent is necessary. This is made from many different substances, such as musk, asphaltum, oil of anise (a plant of the parsley family), and common fish oil. Trails of these scents are laid from all directions to the trap. When the fur-bearer comes along, it smells the scent, which is sprinkled sparingly on tree trunks and bushes, and follows the trail until it steps into the trap.

The new cabinet type lavatories serve the purpose of towel storage as well. The problem of keeping a supply of bathroom linen available is always a hard one to solve, so this new cabinet should be very popular.

Landis Expected To Decide Today On Feller Case

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Baseball overlooked even the great Dizzy Dean today and gazed at a hard boiled man of 70, Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, for his long-awaited decision on the strange case of Bob Feller.

The gray-haired czar of baseball had one of two apparent decisions to render: To declare Feller a free agent or to rule him property of the Cleveland Indians.

However, no one knew for sure whether Landis would rule in the case of the sensational schoolboy pitcher today, or wait until some colder day in January. The prevailing guess was he would act today.

Should he rule Feller a free agent he automatically would open the doors for at least 20 other well-known major league stars, who would know nothing better than to be free agents on identical grounds of minor-league rule violations so they could sell their services to the highest bidder.

If he doesn't rule Feller a free agent, the gruff commissioner would be accused of overlooking rule violations if for no other reason than that Feller was signed at the age of 15, whereas Landis consistently has refused to recognize any contract signed by a player under 17.

It was such a mess that many figured the commissioner would rule Feller property of Cleveland and then resign his office with the admonition that they needed his counsel no longer.

Cleveland bases its claim to Feller on the grounds that it was above board on the contract and that Feller did sign a minor league contract with Fargo-Moorhead of the Northern League, as required.

The super baseball sale of Dean remained in status quo. The Pirates were regarded as the hottest seekers of the great Dizzy although many insisted Dean already had been sold to Cincinnati.

While the score or more major league deals stared on ice, the old trading twins of the majors finally produced one deal yesterday. The Boston Red Sox traded infielder Bill Werber to the Philadelphia Athletics for Third Baseman Pinky Higgins.

Colonials Defeat Jewels, 44-27; Saunders Helps, Rabin Makes 18

Saunders Floor Captain Against New York Jewels

In a whisper, prior to Wednesday night's game with the New York Jewels at the Auditorium, Frank Morgenweck indicated "Rusty" Saunders would be the floor captain.

Talking out of the corner of his mouth in a real Brooklyn whisper, Pete Sinnott asked Morgie, "Who's running things out here tonight?"

"Saunders," answered Morgie. The confab went on near the press table, but the huddle was not secretive enough so that the scribblers couldn't get the low-down.

"Rusty" probably will continue as captain of the Colonials as long as they continue to play in the manner that they did against the Jewels.

Doings at Major League Meetings

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Heard at the major league meetings:

Jimmy Dykes, White Sox manager, offers this solution for the lack of trading: "They should hold these meetings right after the World Series. Everybody forgets how lousy his ball club is by December."

President Lou Comiskey of the White Sox and Hurt Shotton, manager of the Columbus Red Birds, have been in bed with flu ever since the start of the meeting. Said Bill Bengtson, president of the Pirates: "No ball player is worth $200,000, not even Dean."

Job-hunters at the meetings: Sid Weil, former president of the Reds, and Larry MacPhail, last year's general manager of the same club; Al Mamau, manager of the Albany Club last year, Casey Stengel and Otis Miller, deposed Brooklyn leaders, and Del Bissonette, former Brooklyn star.

Every club in the National League except St. Louis and Philadelphia tried to buy Paul Derringer from the Reds. Lefty O'Doul reports the two best prospects out of the Pacific Coast League this year were Bob Doerr of San Diego, who went to the Red Sox and Joe Marty of San Francisco, the outfielder grabbed by the Cubs.

Those who feel confident enough to analyze the actions of Branch Rickey say he has committed himself so far on the Dean deal that he may now feel forced to lower his price in order to save his face.

The Dodgers, badly in need of outfield strength, were amazed to read that Ethan Allen had been sold to the Cubs to the St. Louis Browns. Somebody in the Brooklyn office forgot to look at the waiver list.

That may mean Braddock and his manager, Joe Gould, will refuse to sign and close with Taylor for a no-decision contest with Louis at Atlantic City.

On the other hand, Schmeling may not be so keen to sign if the commission stipulates that he promise, to the tune of a $25,000 forfeit, that if he wins the title he'll defend it here within a year.

Reports were spreading that should the German become the first man on record to win the heavyweight championship twice, he'll ship it back to Germany and bury it.

Joe Gould said he'll not let Braddock fight Louis for a cent less than a flat guarantee of $300,000, but if the champion falls to get together with Schmeling, Taylor may be in a position to force him to make a smaller cut.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT.

(By The Associated Press.)

Trenton, N. J.—Joe Cox, 224, Cleveland, defeated Matros Kirilenko, 220, Russia, two falls to one.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Rudy Dusek, 220, Omaha, threw Abe Coleman, 205, New York, 25-00.

Holyoke, Mass.—Dan O'Mahoney, Ireland, defeated Al Mercier, Springfield, straight falls.

How often to water indoor plants is a perplexing problem. The only correct answer, of course, is as often as needed; but this can only be determined in individual cases because the type of plant, the type of soil, size of the pot, humidity of the room and other factors have to be considered.

Weather Forecast

Washington, Dec. 10—Forecast for New York city and vicinity—Overcast mild weather; probably occasional rain to night and Friday; moderate to fresh northeast winds veering to southeast Friday; lowest temperature about 40.

Eastern New York—Probably occasional rain to night and Friday; colder in west portion Friday.

RAIN

MILDER TEMPERATURE AND RAIN IN CITY.

The near zero weather of the fore part of the week was followed by rising temperature on Wednesday afternoon and evening, and this morning when householders awoke it was to find the city enveloped in a rain storm that fell throughout the early hours of the day.

The "Sam Brown" Belt

The "Sam Brown" belt is named after its originator, Gen. Sir Samuel Joseph Browne, a most gallant English officer prominent in the early Indian campaign and the Indian mutiny. General Browne served in India throughout the great Indian mutiny and Sepoy war and lost an arm at the battle of Seeporah, which really cost him his life. It was the loss of the arm which caused him to devise a new sort of saber belt later generally adopted by the British army and also by other military forces.

The Pullman Company in the past 24 months has carried more than 32,000,000 passengers without loss of life to a passenger or employee.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Dec. 10.—A club has been organized in the vicinity of West Shokan by the young people. The name of this club is "West Side Troopers." Pro tem officers were elected Saturday night at the first meeting, who consist of the following: Mavis Miller, president; Ray Schneider, vice president; Winifred Weldner, secretary; and Louise Smith, treasurer. The second meeting of this club will be held Wednesday evening at the home of Bette and Jane Snyder.

A rehearsal was held at the West Shokan school on Tuesday evening for the Christmas play to be given by the pupils attending high school. The date set for the West Shokan public school entertainment is Monday evening, December 21.

Mrs. Lena R. Burgher has also announced the date for the Shokan entertainment which will be held at the Dutch Reformed Church of Shokan on Christmas Eve, December 24. Mrs. William Wagner, Mrs. Louise Whipple, Mrs. Addie Van Demark and Cornelia Davis were numbered among Kingston shoppers on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bell and Mr. and Mrs. Lester S. Davis spent the week-end with friends in Yonkers. Friday evening the group, with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Large, paid respects at the bier of Robert G. Knorpp at the family home in Flatbush, Brooklyn. Donald Bishop and Elwyn Davis went to the metropolis Saturday to attend Mr. Knorpp's funeral.

A wide community interest is centered upon the misfortune that befell George Trowbridge and family as the result of the recent burning of their home and its contents in Krumville, the members of the family having recently retired for the night barely escaped with their lives, so completely was the building enveloped in flames when they awakened. Mr. Trowbridge, who is an industrious quarry worker, had stacked up the family larder for winter with a list of two butchered hogs, a barrel of sugar, another of flour, a large quantity of canned fruit and vegetables, which were destroyed together with personal belongings, including $12. Many already have donated clothing and household furniture for this most worthy cause and to further the good work of rehabilitation a benefit dance will be held Friday evening at the Olive Bridge I. O. O. F. hall. Music will be furnished gratis.

After trailing a large black bear for seven or eight days, bruin was finally tracked to his lair on Tuesday high up on the ridge rising to the left of Moonhaw Club, where the animal upon hearing the approach of his nemesis was shot by Ralph Bell while endeavoring to emerge from his rocky retreat. Mr. Bell was accompanied by "Bus" Avery and the pair finally succeeded in pulling the bear from its wedged quarters but soon found the burden too great, and were obliged to return to civilization for help to haul the carcass the several intervening rugged, mountainous miles to the Moonhaw road. The weight of the bear dressed is reported close to 300 pounds.

The many old Olive friends of Jesse B. Boice of Kerhonkson were grieved to learn that he recently sustained a partial stroke. Latest reports say that Mr. Boice is recovering, which is good news to all.

Despite the cold weather a section of log cribbing is being placed in position along the roadway bordering the stream at the north approach of the Bushkill Iron bridge. Julian Eckert is employed with his team pulling the long timbers in position piles nearby.

William Bender senior and junior, are assisting in getting out the annual supply of firewood for Maple Dell Farm.

Charley Duloff and Edward Every are making favorable headway toward the repairing of the machinery for use in rehabilitating their recently burned saw mill at Boiceville.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Avery expect to leave shortly on their annual vacation trip to Allegany county and vicinity.

The Ladies' Aid Society held their quilting frolic Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Herbert Hyde at the parsonage.

A prominent visiting delegation from William H. Raymond Lodge of Saugerties is expected to be present Saturday evening at Shokan I. O. O. F. Lodge.

Walter Miller came up to spend the week-end from the CCC Camp in Cornwall. He rode his bicycle from Kingston and stayed at the Davis home at West Shokan Heights over Sunday night.

When you feel the first chilly draft from an open window, which fall always brings, you will know it is time to watch out flowers if they are to be kept fresh and beautiful. Although they will survive longest in a cool situation, a draft is often fatal, and when temperatures vary considerably indoors and out, they should be protected against sudden change.

Even vegetables can reflect holiday mood. "Holly" may be fashioned of green peppers and pimientos for an attractive garnish. "Holly" may also be made with "leaves" of citron and "berries" of red chives.
